Books on Education and Teaching

Besides his own publications Mr. Bardeen has for forty years dealt extensively in books on education and teaching, and has now in stock the largest collection on sale of such books and pamphlets, particularly sets of Educational Journals, Official Reports of all Countries, and of States and Cities, etc.

He has just purchased the entire library of the late William H. Payne, president of the Ypsilanti state normal school and of the Peabody college for teachers. This is probably the largest individual collection existing, and is especially rich in French pedagogy, as Dr. Payne was the translator and American editor of the works of Gilbert Compayré. It is to be noted that Dr. Payne was greatly interested in book-binding, and a large proportion of these books are finely bound in half leather. Catalogues will be ready Sept. 1.

——THE SCHOOL BULLETIN PUBLICATIONS——

The School Bulletin

And New York State Educational Journal

Established 1874. 24 pages, 9x14. $1.00 a year

The School Bulletin is one of the three oldest educational journals in America, and the only one of them that has been under the same ownership and management from the beginning. It was the only American school journal which received the gold medal at the Paris Exposition of 1889; it received the highest award offered at the Chicago Exposition of 1893, the diploma pronouncing it "of the greatest interest and historical value to educators of all grades"; and it received two gold medals at the Paris Exposition of 1900. Its editor had charge of the department of Educational Publications at the World's Fair Congress of 1893, and prepared the article on Educational Journalism printed in the 50th anniversary volume of the National Educational association for 1906.

In the feature of educational news it has never had a rival. Its chronicles of what has happened in New York schools since its establishment are unmatched in educational literature, and it has taken note of whatever has happened in other states that involved general principles. It is abundantly illustrated, especially in portraits, of which more than 300 have appeared in a single volume.

It also publishes the most important circulars and decisions of the Education Department, and records of the meetings held and circulars issued by the District Superintendents; in short it is indispensable to the New York teacher who would be well-informed.

Dr. Sherman Williams, Chief of School Libraries, wrote us May 25, 1913: "I have read the School Bulletin from the first number, I think. I read no other periodical with so much satisfaction. Your reports of educational meetings are not equalled by any other writer. Your general surveys of the educational field are very remarkable. Your knowledge of human nature is unusual. Your wealth of information is marvellous. All these qualities enable you to make the School Bulletin the remarkable paper that it is."

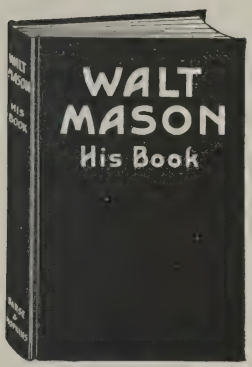
*WALT MASON
HIS BOOK

With an introduction by Irvin S. Cobb.



Arthur Conan Doyle:

"It is a work of high individuality, full of raciness, wit and sense."

Geo. Ade:

"Walt Mason is the High Priest of Horse Sense."

Hon. Champ Clark:

"We need more of this kind of philosophy. Better to sing a jubilante than a miserere."

Elbert Hubbard:

"His prose poems exercise your liver by making you laugh. His wit bubbles and gurgles like a Kansas creek where the bullfrogs gambol."

Walt Mason's prose poetry is perhaps the most widely read of contemporary writers. It has appeared in the leading magazines and newspapers throughout the country. William Allen White summarizes his work aptly in saying:

"How many millions of people are cheered year by year as they turn every day to those quaint verses! Here is a man doing a man's work in the world, making life brighter and more cheerful and more sensible in this vale of tears. Millions in money could do no more—if as much—as this man does at his day's work."

The book is substantially bound and the text is printed in clear, readable type on paper of first quality. Each book is wrapped in attractive wrapper, printed in colors.

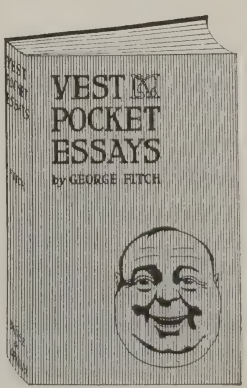
*VEST POCKET ESSAYS

BY GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash," etc.



"Vest Pocket Essays" are short talks—about four hundred words each—on miscellaneous subjects, "From Hope to Hash," "From Cabbages to Kings." Fitch's humor is good-natured, yet there is a wealth of meaning behind his fun. It is above all things a philosophic humor, though he is never cynically smart, and when he takes certain institutions to task he does it in a kindly manner. His is a quiet, dry, droll humor—to be consumed in leisurely fashion, rolled under the tongue and chuckled over.

The book is substantially bound and the text is printed in clear, readable type on paper of first quality. Each book is protected by an attractive wrapper, printed in colors.

A volume of verse marking a departure from the old line. The scene is the Yukon, and the characters are real men—men of flesh and blood, who talk in direct and virile language, who have primal instincts and passions, who toil, sin, dream, accomplish and despair. Strong and outspoken are they—a man's message to men—yet fit for the reading of all, because they are true.

Be a miner yourself for the nonce and light your pipe in the circle of good fellowship about the camp fire.

This you will do as you read "The Men Who Blaze the Trail."

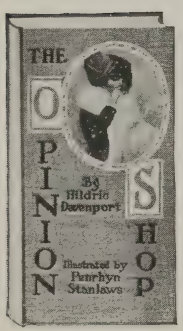
THE OPINION SHOP

By Hildric Davenport Owsley.



"Folks As We Know Them" might be the title of this book; for, written in a vein at once humorous, cynical and satirical, filled with aphorisms and epigrams, pointed and witty, it makes piquant fun of the foibles and fancies of human nature. It is a quotation book for frivolous moments, although under the surface is to be found many a good philosophical truism.

The illustrations are from the capable pen of that artist of international fame, Mr. Penrhyn Stanlaws.

Portrait of Mr. Stanlaws's "Snow Girl" embellishes the cover.

Size 4½ x 8½ inches.

Cloth. Title in gold and color, 60 cents.

PETER PAN

RETOLD IN STORY FORM FROM J. M. BARRIE'S DRAMATIC FANTASY.

Edited by G. D. Drennan

This is the true story of Peter Pan, so dear to the hearts of children, and immortalized by the incomparable acting of Maude Adams. The true tale of the Never, Never, Never Land now for the first time told in story form, and with an ingenuous and simple directness that must appeal as strongly to the grown-ups as to the children, will ever have a place among the juvenile classics of its day. A fantasy with a meaning—a fairy tale with a picturesque setting. In the very front of each book one may find the real picture of Peter Pan—a portrait in color, and just as our mind has painted him.

There have been few, if any, love anthologies so complete, or having such an abundance of material from hitherto unknown sources, as "The Wealth of Love."

The book is, in fact, all that the title implies; free, however, from the sentimentality as expressed in the present-day novel, but rich in the lore of the past, when this, the greatest of human emotions, was the power that erected the empires and destroyed the kingdoms of earth.

The cover is of extra cloth, with handsome gold tooling of elaborate design.

This edition contains his collected verse, including the immortal "Ballad of Reading Gaol" and the fantastic "Flowers of Gold."

BIRTHDAY HOROSCOPES

BY DR. J. F. PHELPS.

Amusing, entertaining, instructive, because it tells frankly what you are—your character, temperament and latent possibilities for good or evil, as disclosed through the science of Astrology, by the planetary influences on everybody's birthday.

Startlingly accurate! You read it for your own birthday and are astonished! You read it for your wife's birthday, and are amazed! You read it for your family or friends, and you wonder what there is in Astrology that gets so close to the truth. For an evening's entertainment it is a novelty that you are not slow to appreciate. If conversation lags, read aloud one or two of the horoscopes, and you'll be busy the rest of the evening.

Paper, attractive cover design in colors, 5 x 7¼ inches, 35 cents.
Cloth, cover design in three colors, 50 cents.

TIGHT-WADS

R. U. TITE.

With seventeen illustrations by CLARE A. BRIGGS,
The famous Cartoonist of "The New York Tribune."

This unique volume presents the Tight-Wad in all his glory, showing him "at home," on the "street car," while "entertaining friends," when "out with the boys," and other places too numerous to mention. From title to "finis" the book abounds in wit and humor which will make you scream as loudly as the eagle on the cover.

Cloth binding, with four-color inlay, size 5 x 6 inches, 35 cents.

Agriculture and the Farming Business.

Illustrated with a frontispiece in color and 235 pictures. 900 pages, 8vo, cloth, ...net, $3.00

This book accomplishes what has not previously been done for the farmer—it brings together in one simple, non-technical volume a wide range of practical and scientific information directly related to the every-day problems of the farm.

It serves as a clearing-house for all the mass of valuable scientific material pouring from the presses. It simplifies in form and statement without reducing in scientific accuracy the teachings and discoveries of expert authorities, agricultural colleges, experiment stations, and the United States Department of Agriculture. It deals with almost every typical interest and problem to be met on the modern farm.

The volume contains something of interest and value to every member of the farm family. It will also prove equally valuable to the city dweller who dreams of one day moving to the farm, or who desires to farm a city lot.

The author tells the story and illustrates the style of Flood, Grattan, Curran, Plunkett, Emmet, O'Connell, Meagher, Butt and Parnell, and then summarizes Irish history in the last quarter of a century. He has brought his patriots together in one group and has so outlined the biography of each that the connection between them is well disclosed, the history which they helped to make is followed intelligently and without loss of its connecting links, and the personal and human side of the men is still prominent.

"A veritable treasure-house of broad and accurate information on a noble subject, couched in beautifully sustained diction. An indispensable aid to every one who would become conversant with Ireland's history."—Prof. Michael G. Rohan. Marquette University, National Chairman Irish History Committee of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

BRADY. The Fighting Man.

By William A. Brady. With many illustrations from unusual photographs. 12mo, cloth .....net, $1.50

This is not a war story, but the autobiography of an interesting American who fought his way through to success. When he was very young, William A. Brady got the idea, perhaps from his Irish blood, that a man should be known as a fighting man, and he won and has kept that reputation for himself.

He tells in simple conversational English and with the utmost candor the spectacular incidents of his career from the time he was a "peanut butcher" on emigrant trains out of Omaha to the present when he pays the railroad companies four hundred thousand dollars a year for transporting his companies of players and properties.

There is here much inside history of stage-life in America dating back to the days when David Belasco was a poorly paid stage manager at the Baldwin Theater in San Francisco and Maude Adams picked the banjo and played "Peanuts" in Under the Gas Lamp. But the greater part of this extraordinary human document is devoted to pugilism and the prize ring, the remarkable story of how Mr. Brady developed and exploited Corbett, Jeffries and other champions.

Dante: How to Know Him. (How to Know the Authors Series.)

Gelett Burgess and the Commonplace never met before. The meeting is a collision. Sparks fly. Romance, says he, is the art of getting fresh glimpses of the commonplace. His fresh glimpses transform it into something new and strange. The supreme sulphite does things to the bromidic world.

Burgess, the writer who refuses to stay "put," who turns off good melodrama, plunges into realism, frolics in foolishness, adds more new words to the language than any man of his time, here emerges as an essayist of the first water.

CHAPLIN. Charlie Chaplin's Own Story.

With many illustrations. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.00

There is a natural curiosity about the personality of a public entertainer who gets $670,000 a year for being funny.

This book satisfies that curiosity. The man who makes millions laugh every day tells his whole strange story in a way that compels credence. One can not doubt or question these experiences and confessions, almost unbelievable as they are.

The artful artlessness, the fine simplicity, the gracious modesty with which the life-story is narrated are no less remarkable than the incidents themselves.

Says the author reviewing his past: "If I had not been so egotistic over my first success, Mrs. Kendall might have made me a tragic actor. If my brother had not returned in time, I might have been a thief in the London streets. If the explosion in the glass factory had been a little bigger, I might have been buried in a pauper's grave. If people keep laughing at me for another year, I shall be a millionaire."

COLTER. Tumbleweed.

By Alice M. Colter. Illustrated by Archie Gunn. 12mo, cloth ..... net, $1.25

The girl who is nicknamed Tumbleweed, because she is light and airy and loves the wind, is a little different from any girl that has ever found her way into the pages of a story. She is new without being fresh, original without being precocious, different without being eccentric; she is natural and human and real, with a fanciful imagination that is Peter Pan and a fascinating charm that is Maude Adams herself. She is gay but she isn't always happy; she is cheery but she isn't always glad; she is good but she's never goody-goody. In fact, she's Tumbleweed—sometimes called Wee—and the only way to know her is to read the story of her life and love, which Alice M. Colter has so charmingly written.

ELLIOTT. The Philippines, to the End of the Military Regime.
By Charles Burke Elliott, author of The Law of Private Corporations; formerly Justice of the Supreme Court of Minnesota, later Justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippines and Secretary of Commerce and Police. Illustrated, large 8vo, cloth .....net, $3.50

At a time when Americans are reviewing the whole Philippine question, which presses anew for solution, this work, written with force, dignity and authority, with special knowledge, broad sympathy and the judicial attitude of a trained legal mind, must command attention and win a wide and deserved hearing.

This history is introduced by an informing discussion of the whole theory and practice of Colonization, ancient and modern. Then follows a description of the physical features and natural resources of the Archipelago. Two chapters are devoted to a consideration of the native people, their classification, characteristics and customs. This leads up to the formal history of the Philippines under Spanish rule: the discovery and conquest, a half century of accomplishment, two and one-half centuries of stagnation, the awakening in the 70's, a period of revolt and insurrection closing with the execution of Rizal in 1896. The author considers the governmental organization under Spain, legislation, codes and courts, taxation and revenue, personal status and trade restrictions. Then come chapters on the Philippines under American rule: the capture of Manila and the conquest of the Islands; the Peace Protocol and the Treaty of Paris; the policy of Expansion and the Anti-Imperialists (among whom Judge Elliott pays his respects to Mr. Bryan); the diplomacy of the consulates and early relations with the Insurgents; the period of military occupation; the Filipino Rebellion and the days of the Empire—down to the capture of Aguinaldo and the end of the military regime.

Prudence Says So.

Illustrated by Arthur William Brown. Inlay in full color by Neysa McMein. 12mo, cloth .....net, $1.25

Prudence of the Parsonage has taken her joyful place with the famous girls of fiction. To thousands of Americans, indeed, she has seemed not a creature of fancy but a real person, a living friend. And in thousands of American homes there has been a longing to know more about Prudence and the happy family which she mothered with love and laughter, quaint humor and true faith.

To these homes PRUDENCE SAYS SO will come as a boon that lightens burdens and scatters cheer. For here is the dear girl again in all her charm, rounding out her romance with Jerry, marrying and having a little Fairy of her own. And here are the other Parsonage girls, Fairy and Lark and Carol and Connie, a little older, ready for their own love affairs, but not too old for glorious fun. The fun is fresher and livelier than ever, for Carol, the witty and lovely twin, rises to the prominence of heroine and brightens the whole delightful story with golden laughter.

The sayings of Prudence, always on the tongues of her sisters, will be always on the tongues of her readers. And her spirit, so glad and fresh and wholesome, imparts itself to all who read. PRUDENCE SAYS SO is the big joy-bringer of the year.

JERROLD. France: Her People and Her Spirit.
By Laurence Jerrold, author of The Real France, The French and the English, etc. Lavishly and beautifully illustrated. Sumptuously bound. 8vo, cloth, gilt top .....net, $3.00

This book does what no other book has attempted to do. Other books have described the movements of the French armies in the Great War and glorified the heroism of the nation. This book gives a complete cross-section view of France today—not only military affairs, but the background of history and geography; the people, politics, society, the churches, the soil, the leaders. It is packed with first-hand observations, inside knowledge, balanced opinions, little known and pregnant facts, brilliant portraits. It is, moreover, an eloquent and splendid interpretation of the spirit of France. It must take its place as an authority. Years must pass before its worth is impaired.

The author, born of English parentage, has lived in France for twenty-five years; has written in English of France and in French of England and America; is chief Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. He views his subject with both the insight of the native and the critical aloofness of the foreigner.

The publishers have given this masterly work a setting worthy of the noble text, fit emblem of the admiration which America feels for France.

Poems of War and Peace.
Small 12mo, boards .....net, $1.00

Mr. Johnson has long been recognized as among the truest poets of America. His range runs from the graceful flight of tender fancy to the sonorous ring of majestic sonnets and the full-voiced ode. Here are characteristic poems of friendship and admiration, and splendid tributes to noble service. But the new note, the haunting cry, is in the Poems of the Great War—fit inspiration for the poet who is patriot as well and lover of England, Belgium and France.

JORDAN. Ways to Lasting Peace.

By David Starr Jordan, Chancellor Emeritus Stanford University. 12mo, cloth ..... net, $1.00

America's most distinguished pacifist here presents and criticizes the body of international opinion as to how the much-desired end of peace may be attained. Nowhere else may so compact, so well-digested, so clear a consensus of the thought of nations on this all-important subject be found under one's hand.

With this comparative study, Dr. Jordan makes his own views clear. He defines Peace as of three kinds: The Peace of Contentment, of which the dove is the symbol; the Armed Peace, which is a condition of balanced hatred—the watchful hyena; and the Permanence of Law—the guardian St. Bernard. And to this last his hopes are bent.

Alsace-Lorraine, A Study in Conquest.

12mo, cloth ..... net, $1.00

Founded on personal observations, fortified by the author's broad and intensive experience, his commanding position, this book is an authoritative record of things as they were in Alsace-Lorraine just before the great clash came. It listens while Alsace-Lorraine speaks for herself. Hundreds of men of note in various callings voice their grievances and their hopes.

JULIAN. The Life of Joshua R. Giddings.

By George W. Julian. 8vo, cloth, 473 pages, gilt top ..... net, $2.50

KELLOGG. What the Stars Saw. Stories for Children from the Life of Christ.

By Caroline Kellogg. With sixteen illustrations in color by Harold Speakman. 6½ x 8¾ inches, cloth $1.00

These stories are loved by little children and they are glad to hear them again and again, for they are told with beautiful simplicity and with complete appreciation of the child's point of view and his liking for the concrete and picturesque. They are stories from the life of Jesus Christ—many of them directly connected with children and all of them being given the domestic atmosphere into which it is easy to lead little folk.

The story of the Shepherds near Bethlehem, the visit of the Wise Men, Jesus among the Doctors in the Temple, the lad with the five barley loaves and the two fishes, the blessing of the little children, the royal entry into Jerusalem, the Last Supper, are among the incidents narrated. At the close of some of the stories there are a few lines of verse that may be taught to the children, and instructions as to how to draw simple pictures suggestive of the scene. Real and human as Jesus is made to seem, there is emphasis laid on His divinity, and nothing that could possibly lead to irreverence can anywhere be found in the volume.

With index, bibliography, glossary, questions for debate and topics for further discussion. Illustrated, 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.25

OUR AMERICA not only deals with the workings of government, with the constitution, but it sets forth, describes and makes clear the vital problems of the day, and the complexities of governmental conduct. It is striking in its logical arrangement, in its clarity of phrasing, in its fullness of illustration and example, in its value to every citizen whether he be a student or not, in its strong appeal to common sense, and in its humanization of what has heretofore been coldly statistical.

MERWIN.—Continued.—The Trufflers.

Illustrated by Frank Snapp. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.35

Now more than ever with THE TRUFFLERS Samuel Merwin commands attention. It is a novel of the New York Latin Quarter, the Bohemia of Greenwich Village, the bachelor girls and bachelor men who seek only the "truffles," the delicacies and pleasures, in the sober game of life and yet must find that life is a discipline after all. It is a drama of the conflict of new ideas against old, freedom against restraint, enjoyment against repression, beauty against duty. And Mr. Merwin sees and shows the good and the evil in the old and the new with truth and humor and clear-lighted sympathy. Wit, cleverness, consummate psychology abound in these pages. THE TRUFFLERS is a notable book that paralyzes criticism through sheer enjoyment.

Imagine India for a background,—the India of grandeaur, squalor, cruelty, charm, nobility and treachery all commingled; the India of teeming streets and magic palaces, of troops entraining and stifling journeys, the India of scorching plains and windy hills, the India immemorially old and ever new, the India of war-stirred intrigue and secret service, the India of mystery, mystery, mystery. Imagine a story written with power, with invention and the thrill of perilous adventure in the unknown. Throw over it the elusive, intangible spell of a strange and enchanting woman. And you have some idea of what this book presents.

NEILSON. Thirty Pieces of Silver.

By Francis Neilson, author of The Butterfly on the Wheel, How Diplomats Make War, etc. 12mo, cloth .....net, $1.50

Thirty Pieces of Silver is an unforgetable picture of love and life made thrillingly intense by the most violent pressure ever put on human beings and revealed in lightning flashes from the thunder-clouds of war.

It is a novel of the Great War, not of the battle-front, but of the men and women at home. The central figure may stand for John Bull. He is the foremost maker of munitions. Has England been betrayed for the Judas price? Is there danger that growing armaments and "Preparedness for Peace" may lead to the loss of our own birthright?

Mr. Neilson is a successful dramatist and a bold and radical thinker. He has been the leader of the Land Tax Group in the English Parliament. This impressive novel from his pen has the virtues of fine drama, characters individual, original, human, and climaxes that come from the clash of powerful wills. It has the arresting interest that comes when a man of keen intellect and strong emotions puts into fiction the truth as he sees it and feels it without fear or favor.

Economics that the man in the street may comfortably grasp, closely knit argument, anecdotes and figures, wit and irony that stick like burrs in the memory—the book offers much. The subject is so searchingly treated, so comprehensively handled, that it probes into every recess, considers almost every phase of American life. A brilliant study, of great popular interest, is ETHICS OF DEMOCRACY by the writer upon whom has fallen the mantle of Henry George.

RICE. Stevenson: How to Know Him. (How to Know the Authors Series.)

By Richard Ashley Rice, Professor of English Literature, Smith College. Frontispiece portrait. Large 12mo, cloth, index.....net, $1.25

More interesting even than his books is the romantic personality of R. L. S. How to know him as he grew into manhood and wrote letters, poetry, essays and romances is the task so well executed in this new volume of a most useful series of books. Professor Rice has caught the charm of this truly "companionable author" and in such chapters as Child's Play, Literature and the Family Profession, Ordered South, Vagabondage and Craftsmanship, The First Great Adventure, The Mirror of the South Seas and Looking Down From the Mill, he has made an appeal which will impress not only those who are casting about for the really worth while books of to-day, but equally that host of admirers who read everything by or about one of the most beloved of English authors.

RICHARDSON. Adventures in Thrift.

By Anna Steese Richardson. Illustrated by Charles S. Corson. Jacket drawing in full color by C. Coles Phillips. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.25

This is the story of one woman who undertook to find out how to keep house economically, how to live for a third less, how to get her money's worth. She explored and tested all the most modern methods of reducing the high cost of living. She discovered and weighed the advantages and disadvantages of buying from the grocer, at the municipal market, and direct by parcel post. She looked into the work of the National Housewives' League, of co-operative buying clubs, co-operative stores and communal kitchens. And finally she solved her problem.

Full limp morocco .....net, 2.75

Ever since the publication of Riley's non-dialect verse in one volume—The Lockerbie Book—there have been calls for a companion book containing the dialect verse. The poet himself has urged the matter upon his publishers this year, and, at his request, THE HOOSIER BOOK OF RILEY VERSE has been prepared.

For the first time it is possible to have Riley's child-verse—such favorites as Little Orphant Annie and The Raggedy Man—in the same volume with the Benj. F. Johnson poems—such as The Old Swimmin'-Hole, The Frost on the Punkin and The Old Band.

In dialect, Riley has given his chief delight to his readers, and through it won the love of every one from the child and the common man to the most sophisticated critic and artist.

ROCHE. Loot.

By Arthur S. Roche. Illustrated with five pictures, end papers and title page in color by M. Leone Bracker. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.25

Loot goes one better the most daring, the most ingenious, the most exciting and the most plausible of detective stories.

In Loot the captain of all criminals plans and executes the looting of the largest and finest jewelry shop in New York. The work is done in the full daylight of later morning and is carried out with perfect success, the thieves getting away with cart-loads of valuables, including a two-million-dollar necklace.

You say this is impossible. But then you don't know the Gray Ghost and you haven't read Loot.

And your interest in the wonderful robbery of Loot is no greater than your interest in the efforts of Morn Light, the lovely actress, and Hildreth, the London solicitor, and Tryon, the great detective, to run down the master criminal who planned the coup.

The chief feeling you have when you read this book is one of thankfulness that you are not obliged to take it in the broken doses of a serial. The climaxes in Loot are so numerous and so thrilling that, if you had to wait from one week to the next, you would not be able to hold your curiosity within bounds, and would stop reading rather than live in such suspended excitement.

Only Relatives Invited.

Jacket drawing in full color. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.25

"Charles Sherman" has won her spurs in the gay field of the farce novel. ONLY RELATIVES INVITED is in her best vein. The cleverness shows no effort, the epigrams no sparsity, the wit no thinness, the timeliness no staleness. She reduces an evil to an absurdity without preaching on the one hand and without approach to the salacious on the other. From beginning to end the story bristles with point and pertinence, snap and scintillating smartness.

SMITH. Other People's Business.

By Harriet Lummis Smith. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.35

There seems nothing of the fictitious or the imaginary about Persis Dale in this story. She is as much alive as one's next door neighbor and far better known. She is the trouble-mender of the village, a deputy to Providence in the kindly overruling of the tangled lives of her friends. She is the angel who does not fear to rush in,—a very womanly angel, not so bright and good as to be above curiosity and an interest in other folk's affairs. She is all compounded of humor, kindliness, sympathy, and shrewd sense. She is rock-bottom human nature. She is food for love and laughter. And she makes the tired reader rejoice.

STEVENSON. Romantic Indiana: A Pageant.

By Augusta Stevenson. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.00

In ROMANTIC INDIANA the author has told in dramatic form some of the most important and picturesque events in the state's early history. She has achieved an unusual thing in that the play is interesting to the reader and at the same time perfectly adapted to the actor. All the details of stage direction are given and everything necessary to successful presentation either for an indoor performance or an outdoor pageant. The play is divided into three acts, and so ingenious is the construction that any one act may be given as a single, complete performance, or if longer entertainment is desired, the complete play may be given.

By Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.00

The Manual of Natural Education.

Illustrated with drawings by Winifred Sackville Stoner, Jr. 12mo, cloth...net, $1.00

In NATURAL EDUCATION Mrs. Stoner explained how she made her daughter the best-developed child in America. Since it was written, she has put her principles into practise with many children of different capacities. Schools of Natural Education, with teachers trained by Mrs. Stoner, have sprung up over the country. All this new breadth of experience has enabled the author to put in definite and concrete form a handbook of specific instruction. THE MANUAL OF NATURAL EDUCATION shows the parent or the teacher precisely how to apply to the individual child in the home, or group in the school, the basic ideas of the famous system.

This is not a dry-as-dust text-book. The writer's spontaneity, her bubbling interest, her intense vitality, were never more in evidence.

By Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, author of The Top of the Morning, Pleasures and Palaces, etc. Illustrated by Lucius Wolcott Hitchcock. Jacket drawing by Neysa McMein. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.25

"Yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

A great philanthropist gave himself and his substance unsparingly for children. His widow and his children—all but one—come to the conclusion that the world owes them a living, and something more, as a debt of gratitude. Around this family the author has woven a story of charm, of subtlety, of humor and human warmth. With the first strokes of her pen the characters take on vitality and distinction.

Two especially impress the reader—Emily Gage, the mother, "a grand old grafter," so glorious a giver herself that she can't understand how any one would be unwilling to give to her children, who would be quite the biggest person in the world, if the world were a Utopia; and Chloe, the exceptional daughter, a brown wren among eagles, who finds she can't subscribe to the Gage way of living at others' expense and whose tender and beautiful love story fills the whole book with light and color.

TOOKER. Everychild.

TRENT. Defoe: How to Know Him. (How to Know the Authors Series.)

By William P. Trent, Professor of English Literature, Columbia University. Frontispiece portrait. Large 12mo, cloth. Index.....net, $1.25

Professor Trent is the greatest living authority on Defoe and his work. This study makes the man real and destroys the popular conception of Defoe as a one-book author. Any reader will find in these carefully chosen, these amply presented selections from Defoe's writings much that he can only find with difficulty elsewhere, much that he will receive with gratitude. The task of delving, of winnowing, of piecing together, has been so well done that future editors will find their path made smoother. The book follows the admirable methods of allowing the author to speak for himself, of holding the editor in the background, of emphasizing a man's output as well as his biography.

For years the critics have said that American novels are superficial, marred by haste, and have compared them unfavorably with the better English fiction.

In THE REAL ADVENTURE Henry Kitchell Webster has written a big, broad, human story, marked by careful writing, close observation, shrewd reality, logical yet highly dramatic development, an engrossing plot, a diversity of incidents, characters from almost every class of society, a theme that means something intensely to us all. It holds the mirror up to our common human nature.

The Great American Novel is an outworn phrase and bygone hope. But THE REAL ADVENTURE takes in so much of American life as it is to-day, and handles it so freshly, so wisely, and so cleanly, that its greatness is not to be denied.

Undoubtedly the best novel of American home life that has appeared in many a year. Worthy of a place in every American home—an excellent novel, sincere and true and wise beyond all doubt and bickering.—New York Evening Sun.

The Painted Scene, Stories of the Real Stage.

Illustrated by Arthur William Brown and Herman Pfeifer. 12mo, cloth....net, $1.50

Every one remembers Rose Aldrich's chorus girl experiences at the Globe Theater in THE REAL ADVENTURE. Here are behind-the-scene stories of the same Globe Theater, of Jimmy Wallace, the dramatic critic, who knew the stage inside out, of other characters who figured in Mr. Webster's great success, and a host of new people, men and women bearing the stamp of living personality. Mr. Webster knows the stage girl and depicts her as she has not been shown before—not as a vampire or an angel, but a real human being, and all the more interesting for being true to life.

And needless to say, the stories are true to art. Each has a real point and a real development, an evolution and a climax, an arresting beginning and a surprise at the end.

If O. Henry had known the stage as well as he knew the plains, he might have written the stories in THE PAINTED SCENE.

The Assault—Germany Before and England After the Outbreak.

Profusely illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.50

"THE ASSAULT puts eyes in the reader. The book is written in that clear, picture-making way which top-class newspaper men know how to use so effectively when they write books; the reader is conscious, not of style and semi-colons, but of sounds and colors—of crowds, of shouting, of songs, and of rattling streets and waving hats. Here is Berlin swept with the war; no one can doubt that the picture is true. The whole book has that accuracy of stroke which means fidelity to the subject—and its readers will sit up late."—Booth Tarkington.

WILES. Cuban Cane Sugar.

By Robert Wiles. Illustrated. 16mo, cloth.....net, $0.75

WILLIAMS. Indiana Authors: A Representative Selection for Young People.

By Minnie Olcott Williams. 12mo, cloth.....net, $1.25

Though intended specially for young people, children of an older growth will find much to interest them in these selections, many honored favorites both in prose and poetry. All of Indiana's illustrious company of authors are represented, from Eggleston to Tarkington, fifty-five in all. Many names nationally known star the pages: George Ade, Albert J. Beveridge, Mary Hartwell Catherwood, John Hay, David Starr Jordan, Meredith Nicholson, Gene Stratton-Porter, James Whitcomb Riley and Lew Wallace, to mention but a few of them. Such names give the collection a good deal more than a local interest, and make it an anthology worthy of a place in every well-selected library.

WILSON. The Fruit of Toil, and Other One-Act Plays.

By Lillian P. Wilson. 12mo, boards.....net, $0.75

To cut swiftly into the red heart of life with single strokes has been thought peculiar to the Russian and Scandinavian drama, foreign to the American genius. The American author of THE FRUIT OF TOIL has accomplished this rare thing. Basing her plots on incidents that are thoroughly familiar, writing with an extreme simplicity that admits no unnecessary word, she lays bare the heart at a stroke. Vivid, vigorous, real, natural and free from morbidness, the plays are a distinct achievement.

The Jack Lorimer Series

By WINN STANDISH

FIVE VOLUMES

Handsomely Bound in Cloth. Full Library Size.

PRICE, 40 CENTS PER VOLUME. NET.....

CAPTAIN JACK LORIMER; or, The Young Athlete of Millvale High.

Jack Lorimer is a fine example of the all-around American high-school boy. His fondness for clean, honest sport of all kinds will strike a chord of sympathy among athletic youths.

JACK LORIMER'S CHAMPIONS; or, Sports on Land and Lake.

There is a lively story woven in with the athletic achievements, which are all right, since the book has been O.K'd by Chadwick, the Nestor of American sporting journalism.

JACK LORIMER'S HOLIDAYS; or, Millvale High in Camp.

It would be well not to put this book into a boy's hands until the chores are finished, otherwise they might be neglected.

JACK LORIMER'S SUBSTITUTE; or, The Acting Captain of the Team.

On the sporting side, the book takes up football, wrestling, and tobogganing. There is a good deal of fun in this book and plenty of action.

JACK LORIMER, FRESHMAN; or, From Millvale High to Exmouth.

Jack and some friends he makes crowd innumerable happenings into an exciting freshman year at one of the leading Eastern colleges. The book is typical of the American college boy's life, and there is a lively story, interwoven with feats on the gridiron, hockey, basketball and other clean, honest sports for which Jack Lorimer stands.

CLASSICS OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

This series will include the leading works on International Law, the republication of which has been undertaken principally on account of the difficulty of procuring the texts in convenient form for scientific study. The text of each author will be reproduced photographically, so as to lay the source before the reader without the mistakes which creep into a newly printed text. An Introduction will be prefixed to each work, giving the necessary biographical details concerning its author and stating the importance of the text and its place in International Law; tables of errata in the original will be added when necessary, and notes to clear up doubts and ambiguities or to correct mistakes in the text will be supplied. Each work will be accompanied by an English version made expressly for the series by a competent translator. Dr. James Brown Scott, member of the Institute of International Law, will supervise these publications as General Editor.

THE LEATHERWOOD GOD. By William Dean Howells, author of "The Rise of Silas Lapham," etc. Eight full-page illustrations by Henry Raleigh. Jacket in color. 12mo, 240 pages. Price $1.35 net.

The story of a religious impostor in the backwoods of Ohio who gives himself out as God. An accurate and intensely interesting reproduction of pioneer Western life, a dramatization for to-day of the men and women of yesterday who were making America, a moving narrative of characters motivated by powerful, elemental emotions, and an index of the growth of America's foremost literary figure.

The "god" is the protagonist of the story; Nancy, his deserted wife, is the heroine, and she and Squire Braile, a mocker as courageous as he is wise and humorous, are two of the most beautiful and memorable figures of modern fiction. Among the other characters are a perfectly real and delightful boy; David Gillespie, hard, and just, and splendid; and Jane, his red-headed, blue-eyed daughter, of few words, almost ferocious in her loves and hates. There are also a number of well-drawn subordinate characters.

From first to last the narrative is direct and moving, quick with sentiment and mellow with gracious, kindly humor. The background is a forest only slightly cut by the settlers, a still, huge, live thing which the reader feels in every line of the book.

OUR EASTERN QUESTION. By Thomas F. Millard, editor of "The China Press," author of "The New Far East," etc. Thirty-two illustrations from photographs, and 26 appendices giving treaties and other state documents. Octavo, 543 pages. Price $3.00 net.

A startling and authoritative book showing where the interests of Japan and America collide and the grave consequences this collision logically entails, and pointing out the only way by which, in the author's opinion, disaster can be fended off. A book indispensable to the wide-awake, patriotic American.

The Far Eastern situation in its most recent developments, political, sociological, economic, and moral; being the mature conclusions of an American journalist of established reputation and authority, familiar with the Far East through long residence and extensive travel, whose previous writings on this topic, sensational when they appeared, have been to an extraordinary degree confirmed by events.

Mr. Millard reveals the wonderful struggle of China in the throes of reconstruction and the tremendous forces, internal and external, contending for the mastery there. He gives a striking exposition of new phases of Japan's world policy and their present and potential consequences for America. With a convincing array of facts and careful logic he works out the triangle in modern "Welt-Politik" formed by the United States, China, and Japan.

THE GOLDEN BOOK OF THE DUTCH NAVIGATORS. By Hendrik Willem van Loon, author of "The Fall of the Dutch Republic," etc. Seventy illustrations from old prints. Jacket in color. Octavo, 400 pages. Price $2.50 net.

A graphic re-telling of the old stories of the adventurous Dutch navigators who led the way across the seas to many unknown countries and laid the foundation of a colonial empire second to none. When these pioneers of the oceans returned from their romantic trips their stories were eagerly read by all Europe. Dr. van Loon, of the Department of European History at Cornell, has collected his material from these ancient accounts, many of them now almost inaccessible, and has condensed, simplified, and vivified them for the modern reader. The author has recaptured the spirit of these intrepid Dutch mariners of two centuries ago —a spirit which still keeps their little country's inheritance inviolate against all foreign aggression.

The many pictures in the book are reproduced from authentic old prints.

Supplement to The Century Co.'s 191 Autumn Catalogue

Containing descriptions of seven new books the manuscripts of which came in too late to permit the inclusion of the books in the regular Autumn catalogue. They will be issued in September and October.

WILSON AND THE ISSUES. By George Creel, author of "Children in Bondage," etc. Frontispiece portrait. Tall 16mo, 167 pages. Price 60 cents net.

An uncompromising defence of the President's record as a constructive statesman in the fields of social, financial, and political reform, and in relation to such vital issues as the war, Mexico, Preparedness, and National Honor.

Mr. Creel points out that, with the possible exception of 1860, the Presidential campaign of 1916 presents a group of problems of larger importance and more tremendous meaning than any other in our history. Among the bigotries of partisanship akin to treason and betrayal, it is the capacity of a people for self-government that is on trial. "Woodrow Wilson," says the author, "comes as a leader, as a nucleating force, as a clear rallying cry to the almost mystic passions that are peculiarly the dominant note of the day, bringing purpose and courage to the struggle for real democracy."

Friend and foe alike of the Wilson cause will welcome this lucid summing-up of the President's personality and record of achievement during the Administration just closing.

THREE MIDNIGHT STORIES. By Alexander Wilson Drake. With an introduction by Albert Bigelow Paine. Eight photogravures, including portraits and interiors. Special decorative head- and tail-piece in tint. Bound in Japanese white vellum. 16mo, 117 pages. Price $5.00 net.

Whimsical fantasies, touched with magic, and of a delicate and individual flavor, the complete unfolding of a rare mind with an outlook and feeling all its own. One is the sketch of a man whose life's aim is to express a veritable haunted house, another of an artist in quest of the perfect halo that will symbolize his adoration for a dead wife, the third of a singing bird, whose cage, attached to a miniature balloon, sails upward to the stars. They are not as other stories. They reveal for a moment a vision of the world that lies only a touch away from us, yet remains for the most part hidden, because we walk in blindness and miss the magic door.

Mr. Drake was for forty-three years art director of The Century Magazine, the man to whom, more than to any other, has been due the advancement and refinement of modern magazine illustration. These three posthumous stories could only have been written by one with his thirst for the beautiful and his insight into the hidden springs of art.

FAMOUS SCULPTURE. By Charles L. Barstow, author of "Famous Pictures," etc. Lavishly illustrated with reproductions of the world's sculptural masterpieces. 12mo, 250 pages. Price $1.00 net.

A handbook of sculpture intended to awaken appreciation and providing the necessary apparatus for a general elementary knowledge of the art and its history.

After a preliminary chapter on "How a Statue is Made," the author traces the story of sculpture through the Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Mediaeval, Renaissance and Modern (classical, romantic, and realistic) schools. He outlines the principal classic myths embodied in Greek sculpture; he characterizes the individual work of the chief sculptors of the world, with brief biographies in each case, and wherever necessary describes the social and historical conditions out of which they arose. The book contains enough anecdotal matter to maintain the interest of younger readers, and is particularly full in its treatment of outstanding individual works.

"Famous Sculpture" is a companion volume to the same author's "Famous Pictures" and "Famous Buildings." It is very fully and representatively illustrated.

WAR AND LAUGHTER. By James Oppenheim, author of "Songs for the New Age," etc. 12mo, 200 pages. Price $1.25 net.

A new volume of poems by this well-known pioneer of the free verse movement, whose "Songs for the New Age" have been called by The Boston Transcript "a milestone in our poetic progress."

"War and Laughter" is an expression of the conflict and exultation of existence, a series of direct reactions from life, written mostly in the free polyrhythmic style of which the author is an acknowledged master, the guiding idea being that laughter in the end will be the salvation of the world. The book also contains the psycho-analysis of a strangely sardonic personality, an analysis at once unsparing and full of beauty and poetic color.

Mr. Oppenheim is one of the few who have taken the new medium of vers libre and wrought it into a real music. "War and Laughter" has a wider range and more variety than any previous work of his. Filled with superb conceptions and a quickening vision, it is, as one reader said, "as invigorating as a blustery bath in the surf."

HOW THE WORLD MAKES ITS LIVING. By Logan Grant McPherson, author of "The Working of the Railroads," etc. 8vo, 400 pages. Price $2.00 net.

A popular exposition of the economic life of society intended for those who, unfamiliar with scientific terminology and habits of thought, wish to understand the real nature and relations of their own activity and that of the world in general.

The author, a well-known transportation expert and statistician, shows that all civilized existence depends upon economic activity. He presents the meaning of Utility, Property, Value, Capital, Interest, Wages, Price, Profit, Speculation, Crises, and Panics, showing their practical significance in the field of business. He points out that the mental and moral development of those who create the demand determines the kind of things and services that will be supplied. He asserts the need of a greater unity of purpose and a more general co-operation among those engaged in the production and exchange of things and services. His book constitutes a strong and reasoned plea for industrial preparedness, admittedly one of the foremost needs of the nation in view of the international commercial war that threatens to follow the present European cataclysm.

TRENCHING AT GALLIPOLI. The Personal Narrative of a Newfoundlander with the Ill-fated Dardanelles Expedition. By A. John Gallishaw. Sixteen illustrations from photographs. 12mo, 350 pages. Price $1.30 net.

Two years ago A. John Gallishaw was a special student at Harvard. Being a Newfoundlander by birth, he gave up his course to enlist in the service of his King. How he was sent to Scotland to train; how he was selected to stay in London as record-keeper for the First Newfoundland Regiment; how he managed to rejoin his regiment by smuggling himself aboard their transport and hiding for days; how he lived and fought during three months of the Gallipoli campaign, in which his regiment distinguished itself at fearful cost,—all this he tells ably and vividly. "Trenching at Gallipoli" is an adventure-story stranger than fiction, and more exciting; and as a reliable account of the great campaign, by one of its few survivors, it has permanent value.

THE NIGHT COURT AND OTHER VERSE. By Ruth Comfort Mitchell. 12mo, 100 pages. Price $1.00 net.

A collection of poems, written with an art that is at once delicate and full of robust vigor, and informed throughout by the spirit of communal sympathy and social purpose.

The little poem, 'The Night Court," originally published in The Century Magazine, has already achieved a popularity somewhat comparable with that of 'The Man with the Hoe." It was written under the pressure of a sudden inspiration. The author had witnessed a session of the Women's Night Court in New York, and so filled was she with the impression of the scene that she began the poem on the back of an old envelope while going home in the subway, completing it during two or three subsequent subway trips. Once published, it was reprinted all over the country, and has now become known still more widely through lectures and recitations.

All the other poems in the collection share a similar inspiration and point of view. The volume is concluded by a poetic play, "The Sweetmeat Game," a poignant episode from life in San Francisco's Chinatown.

THE DARK TOWER. By Phyllis Bottome, author of "Mademoiselle l'Anglaise," etc. Five full-page illustrations, including a frontispiece in color, by Gardner Soper. Jacket in color. 12mo, 400 pages. Price $1.35 net.

A rich, well-knit, full-flavored novel, set in rural England and snow-capped Switzerland, and dealing with the wild-tempered Staines family and some others who are important through their relations to it.

The characters are individualized and made interesting, even when they are minor figures. The story is primarily about Major Staines, the woman he did marry, the woman he met too late, and Lionel the friend. Throughout, the novel is saturated with humor, lighted with brilliant satire, and built with an expertness that permits no slackening of the reader's interest until the last page is turned.

MAKING TYPE WORK. By Benjamin Sherbow, author of "Easy to Read," "Type Can Suggest," etc. Over one hundred illustrations. 12mo, 129 pages. Price $1.25 net.

A new and authoritative book, with a fresh viewpoint, by a type expert, for all men interested in advertising, publishing and practical printing—for all men interested, in whatever capacity, in obtaining the maximum business result from the printed word.

This book embodies the results of a dozen years spent in working out practical problems of advertising and other typography—from the laying out of complete advertising campaigns to the establishing of typographical styles for national magazines.

THE KEYS OF THE CITY. By Oscar Graeve, author of "The Cinderella Stuff," etc. Jacket in color. 12mo, 274 pages. Price $1.35 net.

A novel of New York showing the city in little-known aspects.

"The Keys of the City" tells the story of an imaginative boy and girl living in Bay Ridge, which is in South Brooklyn, within sound and sight of the sea. Across the harbor the boy sees Manhattan, sometimes in its glow of light, sometimes shrouded in the mists of gray days. With the ambition of boyhood he dreams of a day when they will hand him the keys of the city over there.

What happens to him as he grows into manhood, sometimes very far from his dream, sometimes very close to it; the men and women that weave across his life; the many businesses that he enters, describes, and leaves; his own battles with the temptations that arise in his path; and what befalls the little girl chum of his Bay Ridge days—that is the story of "The Keys of the City."

THE CAMERA MAN. His Adventures in Many Fields: With Practical Suggestions for the Amateur. By Francis A. Collins, author of "The Wireless Man," etc. Thirty-two full-page illustrations. 12mo, 325 pages. Price $1.30 net.

A fact-story by an adventurous veteran of the camera which reads like romance. The book tells what men can do, what men are doing every day, with the black box with the unprejudiced eye. A book full of entertainment and information for the general reader interested in adventure and popular science, and of very special value for the amateur photographer, to whom it offers many suggestive ideas.

THE CURIOUS CASE OF MARIE DUPONT. By Adele Luehrmann. Eight full-page illustrations by Frank Snapp. Jacket in color. 12mo, 324 pages. Price $1.35 net.

A mystery and love story combined, set in New York high society circles, with ramifications running to Russia, Rumania, England and France. The central character is a beautiful woman shrouded in a complication of puzzling circumstances connected with a famous murder and the theft of a priceless royal necklace.

The narrative, carried forward largely by dialogue, rushes onward with alluring rapidity. The story throughout, to an extent unusual in fiction of its kind, is colored and intensified by emotion. The mystery develops in the first six pages, and with increasing pressure drives forward to its astounding conclusion.

TRAMPING THROUGH MEXICO, GUATEMALA, AND HONDURAS.

By Harry A. Franck, author of "A Vagabond Journey Around the World," etc. Eighty-eight illustrations from photographs taken by the author. Jacket in color. Octavo, 278 pages; uniform with "Zone Policeman 88."

Price $2.00 net.

A book for those who contemplate Latin-American travelling, for business men who need to know the feel as well as the facts of Mexico, Guatemala, and Honduras, and for that great army of vicarious though eager travellers who range the earth on the wings of their imagination.

Mr. Franck does not follow the well-beaten tracks alone; he goes also into little towns and out into the country. Most of the time he walks. Most of the time he pays his way with work done on the way. He gets a job, any kind of a job, studies the people and the country about, and then, when he feels that he knows the section, he moves on. At the end of months, not days or weeks, he emerges from the far side of a country, usually on foot, with a fair, accurate characterization of it in his films, his note-books, and his memory. After a year or so he comes back home. Then he sits down and spends months writing his book.

That is his method. As for himself, he is a university man, a practical economist and sociologist, a linguist commanding many tongues, a veteran traveller so inured to any and all hardships that when they come they do not disturb his point of view, a globe-trotter with the facets of his mind so polished by past experiences that they catch and reflect everything that goes on about him. He is, moreover, still a kind of runaway boy who sees things freshly and wonderingly, and writes of them with delightful gusto and continuous good humor. The numerous illustrations are as illuminating as the text.

OLGA BARDEL.

By Stacy Aumonier, author of "The Friends," etc. Jacket in color. 12mo, 400 pages. Price $1.35 net.

One day in the summer of 1915 the manuscript of a long short-story by an author practically unknown, at least in America, drifted into the office of "The Century Magazine"; the magazine staff enjoyed one of those experiences so thrilling to literary hunters—a first meeting with a marvelous piece of work by a born artist of fiction. The story was called "The Friends," and the author was Stacy Aumonier. It was ranked by many of the keenest American critics as the best short story of 1915.

Now comes Mr. Aumonier's novel, "Olga Bardel." Its setting is chiefly London, though the narrative occasionally gets out into other English cities and towns, and crosses once to the Continent and once to America. Olga Bardel is the story; there are others, a good many others in it, but by fighting with or against her they are emphasizers and developers of the queer, beautiful, fascinating genius. The grip, the drive of the novel is due to the almost uncanny reality of all the created figures. The powerful story moves against a background of life tapestried with riches collected by a temperament that sees and feels more of the world than the ordinary man.

A HISTORY OF ORNAMENT: ANCIENT AND MEDIEVAL.

By A. D. F. Hamlin, Professor of the History of Architecture in Columbia University, author of "History of Architecture." Octavo, about 350 pages, including over 400 line cuts, 16 plates in half-tone, and 8 plates in full color. Price $2.50 net.

This book is absolutely alone in its field. It constitutes the first half of a projected work designed to cover in two volumes the development of styles in decorative art from the earliest times to the close of the nineteenth century. The present volume, complete in itself, traces the origins and sequent style developments of decorative design from prehistoric and savage art through the arts of the antique world to the close of the Middle Ages. The purpose is to do for the ornament-forms of those ages what the historians of architecture have done for the achievements of the artist-builder.

The book is profusely and accurately illustrated.

A COUNTRY CHRONICLE. By Grant Showerman, author of "With the Professor," etc. Thirty-three illustrations by George Wright. Jacket in color. Tall 12mo, 350 pages. Price $1.50 net.

When you were ten was life thrilling, and melodramatic, and poetic, and sometimes tragic, and farcical, and comic, and always intensely interesting? Just so is this book, and for the same reasons.

It is a work unique and fine in American literature. Without suggestion of adult sophistication, and yet without the dreadful conventional dialect of book-children, the author presents a re-lived boyhood on the farm. The impressions as written seem but transcriptions miraculously caught as they streamed through this boy's mind, and they are expressed in a style as pungent and fresh as the boy-language of all the world. Throughout the book, and binding its parts together, runs the narrative of a group of delightfully human people.

There is no use saying that the author has a humorous, brilliant, or dramatic style. He produces the astonishing effect of not having any style at all—any more than life has style.

OUR NATION IN THE BUILDING. By Helen Nicolay, author of "Personal Traits of Abraham Lincoln," etc. Sixteen full-page illustrations. Jacket in color. Octavo, 521 pages. Price $2.50 net.

Of the period of national shaking together and development the author writes almost as if she were an eye-witness. Leaving cheerfully behind the old, dry, statistical method of writing history, Miss Nicolay tells about what happened, who did it, and what the rest thought of it—as informally as if she were gossiping over the teacups. The reader looks on at great movements and at great blunders, gets a feeling of tremendous ideals side-by-side with comical absurdities, catches glimpses of the new capital—Washington in the making, sees society under the Adamses and other early presidents, with its rivalries and jealousies, the beginnings of invention, the approach of the Civil War, etc.

Out of the book the big political things loom up, set off from and by the little ones. It fills in our great early history, and reveals that important transition period between the Revolution and the Civil War with which Americans are too little acquainted.

PUBLIC SPEAKING. By James Albert Winans, Professor of Public Speaking in Cornell University. 12mo, 476 pages. Price $1.50 net.

Not only for the student of public speaking, but also for the average man who, making no pretentions to being an orator, needs to know how, when occasion demands, to stand on his feet and talk simply, clearly, effectively. It is a book of principles, intended to develop intelligence in regard to public speaking, and offering suggestions that can be adapted to any situation.

"Public Speaking" has already been adopted for use in over twenty American colleges and universities.

REPRESENTATIVE ENGLISH PLAYS: FROM THE BEGINNINGS TO THE END OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY. Edited with introductions and notes by John S. P. Tatlock, Professor of English Philology in Leland Stanford Junior University, and Robert G. Martin, Assistant Professor of English in Northwestern University. Royal octavo, 838 pages. Price $2.50 net.

This is the only one-volume collection of English plays that includes representative dramas from the earliest period to our own generation. It is of value both to the student of the drama and to the general reader. The periods represented are: Middle Ages, Elizabethan, Restoration, Eighteenth Century, Nineteenth Century. In the book are twenty-five complete plays, each with an introduction giving the necessary facts about its authorship, composition, etc., as well as critical and interpretative matter, especially in reference to its time. The foot-notes give terse answers to questions any reader not familiar with a play or with the language of its time is likely to ask.

THE NEW INTERIOR. By Hazel H. Adler. Fifty insets from photographs and drawings. Jacket in color. Royal octavo, 350 pages. Price $3.00 net.

Here and there in America, sometimes working independently, sometimes working together, are groups of artists interested in interior decoration who have developed new and original color combinations, new glazes, new tilings, and all manner of materials and methods for beautifying and making more useful the interiors of American houses.

Mrs. Adler's book shows just what this new and unique American craftsmanship is. It emphasizes the possibility and desirability of people making more of their own furnishings and decorations, and indicates how to do it.

The book opens up to everybody a fascinating field which up to now, because of the lack of someone to interpret it popularly, has been enjoyed only by the few who knew of and could pay for exclusive and high-priced advice in matters of art.

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY. His Duties and Opportunities. By Edward Jones Kilduff, Instructor in Business English at New York University. Illustrated. 12mo, 225 pages. Price $1.20 net.

A complete, detailed description and exposition of the duties of the private secretary, together with a general discussion on the characteristics of the private secretary and how they may be developed. This book gives the first complete instruction in the duties performed by the high-grade private secretary.

"The Private Secretary" embodies the substance of a series of lectures delivered by the author at New York University, School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance on the actual, everyday work performed by the private secretaries of the important executives in the business or professional field. A chapter is devoted to a detailed discussion on each of such essential topics as "Managing Callers," "Handling Correspondence," "Appointments," "Diaries and Accounts," "Ethics and Amenities," "Systematizing the Office," "Sources of Information," "Outlines and Reports," "Filing," etc.

KILDARES OF STORM. By Eleanor Mercein Kelly, author of "Hunger," etc. Frontispiece in full color by Alonzo Kimball. Jacket in color. 12mo, about 450 pages. Price $1.40 net.

A novel of Kentucky, located partly in the Blue Grass and partly in the mountains. "Kildares of Storm" is a novel of modern Kentucky, setting forth dramatically the love-stories of a mother and her two daughters.

The story is full of action; the reader is early seized by its movement and hurried along to the intense climax and close. The characters—varied, attractive, and vivid—are not laboriously psychologized; they are permitted to reveal themselves by what they say and do.

Kate Kildare is a big, beautiful, vital woman, worthy descendant of the pioneers who pushed American civilization over the Alleghanies in conquest of a continent. She is the owner and manager of a plantation called "Storm." Her own love-story is still to be woven into her life when the novel begins; but by that time fate has begun weaving love-stories for her two splendid daughters. The tracing of these intertwined romances makes "Kildares of Storm" a story far removed from conventional romantic fiction.

ON THE BATTLE-FRONT OF ENGINEERING. By A. Russell Bond, managing editor of "The Scientific American." Profusely illustrated with photographs and drawings. Jacket in color. 12mo, 350 pages. Price $1.30 net.

Vivid "fairy tales of science" featuring actual triumphs of American engineering; and describing them as witnessed by the characters of the story, who ask all the questions curious young Americans would naturally ask under the circumstances and thus gain a clear explanation of each process or expedient involved.

Among the chapters are: "Harnessing a River"; "A Water-Cure for a Flattened Pipe-line"; "Light and Heat from Snow"; "Feeding a River with Pumps," etc.

THE ART OF RODIN: WITH LEAVES FROM HIS NOTE-BOOKS. Compiled, with an introduction, by Judith Cladel. Quarto, about 200 pages, including 50 illustrations showing Rodin, his workshop, many of his greatest works, etc. Price $4.00 net.

A book not only for the art student but also for every person who is interested in any phase of that thrilling interpretation and seasoner of life which is called art.

An art book of unique interest and importance, revealing, largely in his own words, the greatest sculptor of modern times. Rodin's meditations on his art, on modeling, on flowers, on portraiture, on nature, and on the great works of the past, are expressed in the most lucid language and with the simplicity and veracity of profound experience and observation. We hear him chat, now in his atelier about some piece of antique sculpture that has just come into his possession, or about a work he has in hand, now while he rambles in his garden or through the museums or the old streets of Paris.

GULLIVER THE GREAT. And Other Dog Stories. By Walter A. Dyer, author of "Pierrot: A Dog of Belgium," etc. Illustrated with photographs, and with a frontispiece in full color by Charles Livingston Bull. Jacket in color. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $1.35 net.

A book for lovers of dogs and lovers of fiction. It is a book of stories each of which is about a dog, or several dogs, and some people. As is usually the case in fiction, the author is able to tell beautifully more truth about his heroes and heroines than if he were cluttering his narrative with stubborn statistics about individuals. Writing fiction about a dog, he has instinctively written about all dogs—about some dog that the reader has loved, or loves, rather, since to love a dog once is to love him always. And it is hard to think of anyone old enough to read who has not already loved a dog.

Mr. Dyer, besides being an author gifted with the dramatic sense, a fine sympathy, and a charming simplicity of manner, is himself a lover, and so a student, of dogs. The stories are a selection from the many he has written in celebration of dogs of every breed and kind.

The book is rich with humor, with tenderness that often touches to tears, with situations that thrill and stimulate, and with fidelities and braveries that appeal to the best that is in men. It is as certain to be popular as a man is sure of his dog's friendship and loyalty.

WITH SERBIA INTO EXILE. An American's Adventures with "The Army That Cannot Die." By Fortier Jones. Thirty-two full-page illustrations from photographs. Jacket in color. Octavo, 447 pages. Price $1.60 net.

The most remarkable war-book of 1916.

The only American who was with the retreating Serbian army all the way from the Danube to the Adriatic tells in this book a fact-story at once incredibly hideous and incredibly heroic. There are details, soberly and straightforwardly stated as dated 1915, which might have been lifted from a tale of horror and splendor belonging to the Middle Ages.

Mr. Jones presents Serbia in its supreme agony. The army of old and young, handicapped by snow and sleet and almost impassable roads, beset by hunger and lack of ammunition, fighting and retreating and dying; the straggling hordes of women and children fleeing they hardly knew whither, in automobiles, ox-carts, on foot; the mobs of doctors, nurses, the rabble of relief expeditions, of one of which Mr. Jones was a member, surmounting difficulties almost beyond the power of imagination in their fight toward safety; little scenes, as of a Serbian home and family when the German and Austrian cannon began raining shells in the town; poignant vignettes of character, as of a ten-year-old Serbian sergeant catching and kissing the hand of his old father, a private in the ranks, to prevent his elder saluting him—of such is Mr. Jones's report of the horrors and the heroism of Serbia going into exile.

PARTNERS OF THE NIGHT. By Leroy Scott, author of "Counsel for the Defense," etc. Eight full-page illustrations by Dalton Stevens. Jacket in color. 12mo, 350 pages. Price $1.35 net.

A new kind of detective story made up of thrilling episodes dealing with the contest of plain-clothes men and criminals in New York City, with an engrossing love theme throughout.

One of the distinctive qualities of the book is the informing fidelity of the characterizations of gangsters and the city's detectives. Mr. Scott makes no use of the romanticized criminals and high-brow sleuths of the usual detective story. His plain-clothes men are true to the type which every day in New York is going about its business of putting shrewd, desperate, and well-organized enemies of society behind the bars of the Tombs. His gangsters he knows with equal intimacy, having had unusual opportunities for studying them. He knows, for instance, their point of view, he understands why a young gangster must kill his man before he attains caste in his gang, he understands their reliance upon opium to raise them into dreams.

All the incidents in "Partners of the Night," however, are fascinating fiction, the skilful work of a creative literary artist; the author's special knowledge of criminals and plain-clothes men serves the important but subordinate purpose of enriching the background of his story and aiding him in the creation of characters and the invention of incidents which have that rare thrilling feel of actuality.

THE NEW MAP OF AFRICA. By Herbert Adams Gibbons, author of "The New Map of Europe," "Paris Reborn," etc. Octavo, about 400 pages, including 6 maps; uniform with "The New Map of Europe." Price $2.00 net.

This new book does for Africa what the author's "The New Map of Europe" did for that continent—that is, it gives the history, especially on the diplomatic side, of the crucial years from 1899 to the great war as they affected Africa. Necessarily the author also glances at African affairs back of 1899, as far as 1850, and considers the future of that rich and coveted continent. "The New Map of Africa" covers a field as yet untouched, in compact form, in any language.

Africa offers to the overcrowded, ambitious and powerful European nations their nearest and otherwise most available field of expansion and commercial exploitation; but the nations have by no means been agreed as to who should take what. The military and diplomatic movements of the contesting countries, as recorded and interpreted by Mr. Gibbons, make a book as interesting as it is historically important.

"The New Map of Africa" promises to have as remarkable a success as "The New Map of Europe."

SOCIETY'S MISFITS. By Madeleine Z. Doty, author of "Little Brother," etc. Accurately and interestingly illustrated with photographs. 12mo, about 250 pages. Price $1.25 net.

The inside story of what goes on behind the bars of reformatories and prisons. The first two articles deal with Miss Doty's own personal experience as a prisoner when she served her voluntary week in jail. The last six articles deal with the life of children in reformatories. Miss Doty's appeal is particularly addressed to women, because in their hands for generations has been the task of nourishing and developing the new life of the world.

Miss Doty, with the permission of the New York State Superintendent of Prisons, spent a week as a voluntary inmate of the State Prison for Women, unsuspected by the matrons, the attendants, or the prison doctor. She saw, temporarily as one of the "misfits" herself, how ruthlessly society tramples out the self-respect of those who offend it. She followed up the cases she had come in touch with. She investigated also what goes on behind the walls of the reformatory, and in the chapters entitled "Why Can't a Kid Write to His Mother?" "The Genesis of the Gang," and "The Fate of a Reformatory Boy," she shows how society's stupid retributive system catches in its machinery the all but innocent motives of children and coins them into hate and fear.

A series of poignant human documents, illustrating the depth and reality of the nationwide campaign for prison reform.

BOYHOOD STORIES OF FAMOUS MEN. By Katherine D. Cather. Sixteen full-page illustrations by M. L. Bower. Jacket in color. 12mo, 275 pages. Price $1.25 net.

Resting her biographical stories on solid bases of fact, Miss Cather has built up narratives of loveliest fancy, in each chapter making real and living some famous man who has often been no more than a name to many of us. Such books set wide open the door into the fascinating field of biography, and will certainly tempt boys and girls to further exploring of this rich domain on their own account. Among the great figures treated are Titian, Chopin, Thorwaldsen, Murillo, Giotto, Mendelssohn, Guido Reni, Tintoretto, Claude Lorrain, Andrea del Sarto, Mozart, Stradivarius.

THE SAPPHIRE SIGNET. By Augusta Huiell Seaman, author of "The "Boarded-Up House," etc. Eight full-page illustrations by C. M. Relyea. Jacket in color. 12mo, 290 pages. Price $1.25 net.

A thrilling mystery story for young people, with a picturesque and historically accurate background.

Five up-to-date youngsters unearth a long-hidden bit of history and stumble upon a Revolutionary secret, and their efforts to unravel it make the story. Their quest opens the eyes of the young investigators to the romantic possibilities of what they had thought a dull, uninteresting home in the heart of the famous old Greenwich Village section in New York City. The march of improvement through their neighborhood, far from destroying the clues they are following, proves unexpectedly helpful, and, parallel to the thrilling old story they are tracing out, runs the life of bustling New York as we know it today.

ST. NICHOLAS BOOK OF PLAYS AND OPERETTAS: Second Series. Richly illustrated. 12mo, about 250 pages. Price $1.00 net.

A selection of the best plays and operettas that have appeared in St. Nicholas in the past fifteen years. A storehouse of wholesome entertainment and artistic inspiration for young people of every age.

The first "Book of St. Nicholas Plays and Operettas," published twenty years ago, was a kind of pioneer in its field in America. In the past decade educators all over the country, notably such men as President Emeritus Eliot, of Harvard, have been eloquently emphasizing the value of the dramatic form as an irresistibly alluring means of capitalizing the natural play instinct of children for their own physical and spiritual benefit. This second series of the "St. Nicholas Book of Plays and Operettas" is issued in response to an active demand for the book.

WILL BRADLEY'S WONDER-BOX. Fifty illustrations by the author. Square 12mo, 150 pages. Jacket in color. Price $1.00 net.

A collection of a dozen stories for boys and girls of fairy-tale age. Each story is complete in itself, but familiar scenes and old acquaintances met previously in the book turn up now and again.

Starting from the town of Noodleburg, princes and princesses, golden caskets, poor lads, selfish brothers, elves and fairies, giants and witches, magical castles, and all the rest, pass across the enchanting pages. The pictures scattered through the book are the work of the author, so the reader sees just what Mr. Bradley thinks "frog-princes," "truly giants," witches, etc., look like.

BOUND VOLUMES OF ST. NICHOLAS. The twelve monthly numbers in two large 8vo, richly bound cloth volumes. 1000 pages, 1000 pictures; per set, $4.00.

ALCOHOL: Its Influence on Mind and Body. Net, $1.25

Millions of intelligent, conscientious people believe moderate drinking helps them. Life-insurance tables, scientific tests, and delicate, almost-human instruments prove this false. Here is the latest and most authoritative word on this tremendously vital subject.

By GRACE M. BROWN

MENTAL HARMONY: Its Influence on Life. Net, $1.00

The man who knows how to govern his life from the inner forces, rather than be subject to outer conditions, will maintain a natural poise that will hold him immune from most of the worries and perplexities that would ordinarily confront him.

MENTAL HARMONY is a great factor in creating for the body a reserve force that will help it withstand the drains of everyday life.

By GRACE M. BROWN

THINK RIGHT: For Health and Success. Net, $1.00

Figuring is the key-note of business and a first aid to the memory. To figure easily, rapidly, and accurately, the work must be done by the most approved short-cut methods. TORCHY, PRIVATE SEC. The volumes now published are: TORCHY, TRYING OUT TORCHY, ON WITH TORCHY. All illustrated. Each, Net, $1.25

Torchy, the youth with more intimate friends than any other in America. Have you ever tried to discover why Torchy is the most popular hero in American fiction? To say that he is the best beloved is merely another way of putting it. His rich, crisp humor, his cheery audacity, his sheer joy in meeting life's inevitable trouble—these help, of course, because they make him more interesting; but the real reason is his unselfish, whole-souled kindliness, and his entire competence in finding out the right thing to do and doing it. The combination of nobility of soul, hair-trigger intelligence and an unplumbed sense of humor is rare in this world. These things made TORCHY really great.

By SEWELL FORD

SHORTY McCABE ON THE JOB. Each, Net, $1.25

The dozen and a half episodes which Sewell Ford allows his hero to relate in "Shorty McCabe on the Job" are nearly all amusing and are variegated enough to be read consecutively with pleasure. Shorty's peculiar New Yorkese is kept up to date. He is engaged this time in seeing that a confidence man carries out honestly the philanthropic provisions of an eccentric will, but Mr. Ford has the sense not to stick to that ingenious mechanism. He branches out as he pleases, sometimes bringing in Shorty's friends of earlier tales and sometimes not. In one instance he holds forth on the immigrant question seriously, in another he sarcastically makes a man who is kind and pleasant to every one, an escaped lunatic. As a rule, however, the moral is to be found in Shorty's slang comments or in the story itself. A further chronicle of Shorty McCabe is published under the title of ODD NUMBERS.

THE MILLER "SILENT TIMES" SERIES

Bound in attractive style. 16mo. Per volume, net, $0.50.

Beauty of Every Day. By J. R. MILLER. A whole-souled argument showing how the common days may be made beautiful and giving advice on the true enlarging of life.

Building of Character. By J. R. MILLER. The most important work is not the making of a living, but the making of a life. These chapters carry suggestion and inspiration in this line.

Dr. Miller's Year Book. A passage for each day, with a verse of Scripture and some practical thoughts for life. Suited for devotional use.

Evening Thoughts. By J. R. MILLER. One-page talks based on selected verses of Scripture, which may be followed day by day as a brief evening devotion.

Every Day of Life. By J. R. MILLER. It is the every days that test us. This book shows how they may be made beautiful.

Finding the Way. By J. R. MILLER. How to find the way through this world, how to learn what God's will is for us, is a question every thoughtful person asks.

First Things First. By GEORGE JACKSON. Sixteen practical addresses, appealing to young men in the very lines where they most need help and guidance.

For the Best Things. By J. R. MILLER. Being good is not enough; striving to be better is not the loftiest aim. Nothing less than the highest and best should ever satisfy an immortal being.

Gate Beautiful. By J. R. MILLER. Twenty chapters of an especially optimistic trend: "The Call to Praise," "The Desires of Thy Heart," "Called to be Saints," "Guarding our Thoughts," etc.

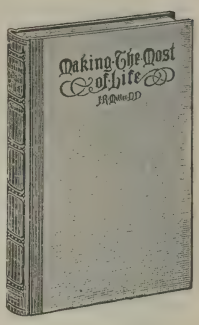
Gentleness of Jesus. By MARK GUY PEARSE. Seventeen brief sermons, written with grace and simplicity and full of sympathy and practical helpfulness.

Golden Gate of Prayer. By J. R. MILLER. Short studies on the Lord's Prayer, not theological, but practical and devotional treatments.

Heart Garden. By J. R. MILLER. The keynote is in the opening lines: "A good woman said, 'My heart is a little garden and God is planting flowers there.'"

Lesson of Love. By J. R. MILLER. Learning to live is learning to love. This is the one lesson of life. What the lesson is and how to learn it this book shows.

Making of Manhood. By W. J. DAWSON. No better book could be put into the hands of a youth about to gird himself for the inevitable conflict with the world.



Making the Most of Life. By J. R. MILLER. Alexander said that Philip gave him life, but that Aristotle taught him how to make the most of his life.

Messages of the Masters. By A. H. BRADFORD. This sympathetic treatment of art masterpieces from a religious viewpoint is essentially new and of particular value.

Ministry of Comfort. By J. R. MILLER. Chapters on various phases of divine comfort. The volume is one that may be sent to those in sorrow.

Personal Friendships of Jesus. By J. R. MILLER. Christ's personal friendships are briefly delineated.

Silent Times. By J. R. MILLER. Named by Alice Freeman Palmer. The title was suggested by the "silent times" observed morning and evening in the college.

Story of a Busy Life. By J. R. MILLER. Mrs. Paull's short life was full of brilliant promise. The story is inspiring and helpful.

Strength and Beauty. By J. R. MILLER. No character is complete which does not combine strength and beauty. Strength without gentleness is brutal. Gentleness without strength is weakness.

Things to Live for. By J. R. MILLER. We ought to live for the best things. Just what those things are we ought to decide thoughtfully.

When the Song Begins. By J. R. MILLER. Life ought to be one long, sweet song. It is worth while to learn just what the song-life is and when it begins.

Wider Life. By J. R. MILLER. The call of Christianity is for men reaching up to their very best and out to their broadest.

1. THE RIVAL PITCHERS

A STORY OF COLLEGE BASEBALL

WHEN Tom Parsons came to Randall College he was looked upon by some as a mere country boy, a "hayseed." He soon showed his ability and was put on the scrub team. Another pitcher was jealous of him and did his best to keep Tom off the leading nine.

2. A QUARTERBACK'S PLUCK

A STORY OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL

OF all college and university sports football is undoubtedly king, and in this story Mr. Chadwick has risen to the occasion and told a story straight out of his own heart and one that is bound to grip the reader from the first.

3. BATTING TO WIN

A STORY OF COLLEGE BASEBALL

AS before, Tom, Phil and Sid are to the front. Sid, in particular, has developed into a heavy hitter, and the nine depends upon him to bring in the needed runs. Then something happens, and poor, misjudged Sid is debarred from playing.

4. THE WINNING TOUCHDOWN

A STORY OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL

FOOTBALL was a serious proposition at Randall that year. There had been the loss of several old players, and then, almost at the last moment, another good player had to be dropped. They went to work and practically reorganized the eleven, and made that glorious touchdown that won the big game.

5. FOR THE HONOR OF RANDALL

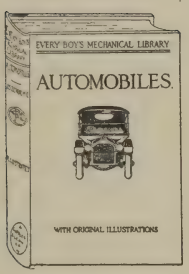
EVERY BOY'S MECHANICAL LIBRARY

By J. S. ZERBE, M. E.

HERE is a series dealing with mechanical subjects in which everybody is interested. Mr. J. S. Zerbe, being one of the foremost mechanical engineers of the day, is well qualified to write on such topics. These books, though written in a way that the boy can easily understand them, will be found of particular interest to grown-ups. Illustrated with scores of original drawings especially prepared to aid the reader.

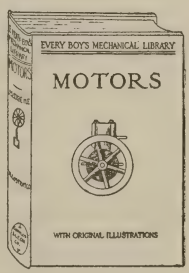
12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Price, per volume, 60 cents, Net.

AUTOMOBILES



THIS is a subject in which every boy is interested. While few mechanics have the opportunity to actually build an automobile, it is the knowledge which he must acquire about every particular device used, that enables him to repair and put such machines in order. The aim of this book is to make the boy acquainted with each element, so that he may understand why it is made in that special way, and what the advantages and disadvantages are of the different types. To that end each structure is shown in detail as much as possible, and the parts separated so as to give a clear insight of the different functions, all of which are explained by original drawings specially prepared to aid the reader.

MOTORS



TO the boy who wants to know the theory and the practical working of the different kinds of motors, told in language which he can understand, and illustrated with clear and explicit drawings, this volume will be appreciated. It sets forth the groundwork on which power is based, and includes steam generators, and engines, as well as wind and water motors, and thoroughly describes the Internal Combustion Engine. It has special chapters on Carbureters, Ignition, and Electrical systems used, and particularly points out the parts and fittings required with all devices needed in enginry. It explains the value of compounding, condensing, pre-heating and expansion, together with the methods used to calculate and transmit power. Numerous original illustrations.

AEROPLANES

THIS work is not intended to set forth the exploits of aviators nor to give a history of the Art. It is a book of instructions intended to point out the theories of flying, as given by the pioneers, the practical application of power to the various flying structures; how they are built; the different methods of controlling them; the advantages and disadvantages of the types now in use; and suggestions as to the directions in which improvements are required. It distinctly points out wherein mechanical flight differs from bird flight, and what are the relations of shape, form, size and weight. It treats of kites, gliders and model aeroplanes, and has an interesting chapter on the aeroplane and its uses in the great war. All the illustrations have been specially prepared for the work.

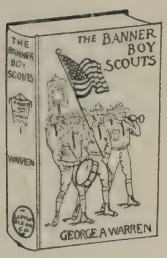
THE BANNER BOY SCOUTS SERIES

By GEORGE A. WARREN

Author of the popular "Revolutionary Series"



PROFESSOR WARREN, who has watched the Boy Scout movement closely since its inception in England, some years ago, is the very best author to write such a series as this, and we know that these clean, inspiring volumes will delight every reader.

12mo. Cloth. Handsomely Illustrated.

Price per volume, 60 cents

1. THE BANNER BOY SCOUTS

Or THE STRUGGLE FOR LEADERSHIP

THIS initial volume tells how the news of the Scout movement reached the boys and how they determined to act on it. They organized the Fox Patrol, and some rivals organized another Patrol. Then more Patrols were formed in nearby towns, and a prize was put up for the Patrol scoring the greatest number of points in a many-sided contest. The Scouts winning over a crabbed old man, and their good acts and thrilling adventures are splendidly told.

2. THE BANNER BOY SCOUTS ON A TOUR

Or THE MYSTERY OF RATTLESNAKE MOUNTAIN

THIS story starts with a most unusual mystery and then follows a long tour of Rattlesnake Mountain, taken by our friends of the Fox Patrol. There is a good deal of fun and adventure—camping, fishing and swimming. Once they are lost on the road in the darkness and find a curious cave. In the end the mystery is cleared away, and the lads show what it means to "be prepared."

3. THE BANNER BOY SCOUTS AFLOAT

Or THE SECRET OF CEDAR ISLAND

HERE is another tale of life in the open, of jolly times on river and lake, and around the camp fire, told by one who has camped out for many years. How the Boy Scouts learned of the mystery of the island, and set forth to learn the truth, is most absorbing. The volume gives many details of the Boy Scout Movement, and on that account alone is of unusual value.

4. THE BANNER BOY SCOUTS SNOWBOUND

Or A TOUR ON SKATES AND ICEBOATS

FROM the time that one of the icehouses fronting the lake collapses, sending the cakes of ice sliding everywhere, things took on a strenuous turn for the Banner Boy Scouts. From home the boys went to a place called Deer Head Lodge, away up in the mountains. On the trip they used skates and iceboats, and at the Lodge they had many adventures while out tramping, picture taking and hunting. Once they were caught in a big snowstorm and had to go to the rescue of their half-starved rivals. Then they became snowbound and had more adventures gaining their liberty.

DEAN'S "FLUFFIDOWN" (TRADE MARK) PATENT RAG BOOKS

ARE SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW

Dean's ordinary Rag Books are always a Novelty, but the new "Fluffidown" Series is a Novelty of Novelties.

AS indicated by its title the "Fluffidown" Series of Rag Books is produced in an entirely novel style on a cloth with a rich fluffy surface as soft as down.

The cold pages and hard corners so objectionable in a paper book are quite absent and give place to a warm, cosy "feel" in a book which can be squeezed and cuddled without damage.

The same instinct which prompts a child to stroke an animal's furry coat will cause it to love a Dean's "Fluffidown" Rag Book (which is full of animals) more than any other.

As in the ordinary Dean's Rag Books, the colors are Fast, Washable and Hygienic, the books having been awarded the Silver Sealed Certificate of the Incorporated Institute of Hygiene, London (Eng.).

FOR MY MUSICAL FRIEND

"The author, with rare clarity and admirable power of statement, covers a wide field. The piano and piano music is her objective, but she manages to touch on spiritual issues, the purest philosophy of life, and brings to her subject a large and varied experience, true sense of the noblest in art and life, with a sound practical series of observations which prove Mrs. Moore to be a practitioner as well as a theorist."—James Huneker, in the Musical Courier, New York.

MORRIS, WILLIAM

EARLY POEMS OF WILLIAM MORRIS

A color book by Florence Harrison is always an event of importance; her brilliant record in the past has brought her right to the front rank of illustrators. All the critics have been impressed by the poetical charm of her interpretation and by her rich yet perfect, modulated colorings. The publishers have been singularly fortunate in securing her services as illustrator of the "Early Poems of William Morris." 15 color plates and numerous black-and-white illustrations.

MOTHER GOOSE'S NURSERY RHYMES

In this handsome volume Walter Jerrold, who is the best living authority on this interesting branch of literature, has gathered together and carefully edited over four hundred of these favorites of our early childhood. Never before have so many different nursery rhymes been given in a single volume. A special feature of the book is the large number of illustrations by John Hassall. Brilliant as all the work of John Hassall undoubtedly is, probably the most lasting of his drawings will be the wonderful pictures which he has made to illustrate the good old nursery rhymes. It is safe to say, therefore, that this is the most complete and the most lavishly and attractively illustrated Mother Goose on the market.

RANDALL, JOHN HERMAN

THE LIFE OF REALITY

In these days of great personal perplexities, and gigantic world-problems, every thoughtful man and woman is earnestly bent upon the search for reality. Out of the din of conflicting voices, out of the chaotic confusion of clashing opinions, one question emerges supreme over all. Amid all the deceptive appearances of life and in spite of life's disillusionments, is there such a thing as Reality, to which our human gropings may lead? Can it be found and experienced in the daily storm and stress of life, and if so, what is the pathway by which man may approach and live "the life that is life indeed"?

Dr. Randall firmly believes that such a real life is possible to every man, and in the chapters of this book he seeks to point out the sources and nature of that Reality for which, since the world began, every soul has been searching either consciously or unconsciously, the various paths of experience through which one moves toward the great discovery, and the resulting freedom and power in the life of the individual, who has attained the soul's supreme quest.

HUMANITY AT THE CROSS-ROADS

The writer believes that the true ideals of any people and the dynamic spirit of any age grow out of its actual philosophy of life and its conception of religion. Organized religion to-day has failed to grasp the significance of the new truth that has dawned upon the modern age and seems powerless to furnish the vital forms of expression through which the resurging life of the spirit in science, in philosophy, in the rank and file of men and women shall find adequate and living manifestation. The signs of a world-wide moral and spiritual awakening are on every hand. Can religion regain its lost leadership and give to the world the great ethical and spiritual dynamic demanded in the new age now dawning?

REMARQUE (Continued)

AMBITION. By Sir John Lubbock.

Masterly Essays by this world-renowned thinker on a subject which has inspired men to a glorious memory in the making of history and moulding our opinions of Health, Wealth, Music, etc.

ARMANDE. By Edmond and Jules de Goncourt. Translated by Alfred E. Haserick and with an introduction by W. D. Orcutt.

Of the Brothers Goncourt, Victor Hugo says, "Charming writers, two minds from which spring a single jet of genius." Armande is their masterpiece.

ATALA. By François René Auguste Chateaubriand. With a biographical sketch of the author.

A tale of an Indian maiden, charmingly written by one who in the old colonial days traversed the solitary wilds of North America, and who is a lover of nature and Indian lore.

BALLAD OF READING GAOL. By Oscar Wilde.

Only when neglected and despised, ill and miserable, did sincere feeling bring forth in Oscar Wilde his one great poem, "The Ballad of Reading Gaol;" the utter hopelessness of the condemned felon is communicated to the reader's mind in all its gruesome intensity.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE. By Sir John Lubbock.

An inspiring essay on the blessings of life and the beautiful world in which we live, to which are added strong essays on The Troubles of Life, Labor and Rest, Religion, The Hope of Progress, etc.

CHRISTMAS CAROL. By Chas. Dickens.

This familiar story possesses perennial interest for young and old. Whether regarded as a ghost story, a character study, or a parable, the "Christmas Carol" is one of the most brilliant tales in English literature.

CORSAIR AND LARA. By Lord Byron. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

The extraordinary interest at the present time in Byron demands that two of his complete works be presented in this series. No better understanding of this "wild child of nature" can be obtained than in Corsair and Lara.

COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The incident on which the story of The Courtship of Miles Standish is based was a tradition in the family of the author and is a good portrayal of early colonial life.

REMARQUE (Continued)

DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII. By Pliny and Bulwer.

Two interesting descriptions of the Destruction of Pompeii: one by Pliny, the greatest scientist of the ancient world, who wrote as an eye-witness; the other the well-known and thrilling account from Lord Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii."

DISCOURSES OF EPICTETUS. Selections.

In Sir John Lubbock's "List of the One Hundred Best Books," the Bible is first, the "Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" second, and "Epictetus" third.

DUTY OF HAPPINESS AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Sir John Lubbock.

Thoughts and quotations in which this renowned philosopher has taken the most comfort in times of depressed spirits, hoping in reprinting the substances of them that they may be of use to others also.

ELEGY AND OTHER POEMS. By Thomas Gray.

The "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" occupies as secure a place among English classics as "Hamlet" or "Paradise Lost," but some readers may not realize that several poems by Gray are equally perfect and impressive. This collection contains all of Gray's verse which is really worth knowing.

ENOCH ARDEN. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the most beautiful and pathetic poems in the English language. Had Tennyson never written another line, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest poets of his time.

EVANGELINE. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The purity, sweetness and refinement with which Longfellow delineates the affections of the heart make his poetry the most welcome of visitants at the domestic fireside, and of all his poems, "Evangeline" is probably the most popular.

FRIENDSHIP AND LOVE. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mr. Emerson is no bookish theorist. He does not draw his conclusions from syllogisms, but from his personal observations of men and things. The essays on Friendship and Love, two of his most human, being subjects akin to each other, are published together as a single volume.

GOLD BUG. By Edgar Allan Poe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

A story of great effect and absorbing interest, one of those rare books that once opened is not closed until the last paragraph is finished.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS. By Archbishop Fenelon.

Judiciously made extracts from the letters of the great archbishop. Fenelon united in his personality the sweetness of the saint with the strength of the reformer, and his personal correspondence contains the very heart and soul of religious devotion.

GOLDEN WINGS. A Prose Romance and a Poem. By William Morris.

Two early productions of Morris's with the same title. The Prose Romance, written in 1856, while still a student at Oxford, and the Poem, two years later, both of which show the irresistible and quaint charm apparent in all the later writings of this architect, painter, designer, craftsman, socialist and author—who, on the death of Tennyson, was thought by many would be the next Poet Laureate.

HEROISM AND CHARACTER. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

As Friendship and Love are linked, so Heroism and Character are complementary. In fact, we perceive a strong connection between the four subjects.

HOLY GRAIL. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

This idyl, which must rank as one of the greatest of Tennyson's poetical achievements, came to him suddenly, "as if by a breath of inspiration."

JULIET AND ROMEO. From the Italian of Luigi Da Porto. With an introductory essay by Dr. W. J. Rolfe.

A translation of the original story from which Shakespeare conceived the plot of "Romeo and Juliet." This edition is edited by Dr. W. J. Rolfe, the greatest living authority on Shakespeare.

KING OF THE GOLDEN RIVER. By John Ruskin.

"The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication. Later, with the passive assent of Ruskin, the charming allegory was publicly printed, and literature is thereby the gainer of this most pleasing little work.

L'ARLESIENNE. By Alphonse Daudet. With a biographical sketch by M. F. Sweetser.

L'Arlesienne is the best of Daudet's dramas, and is responsible for his fame as a playwright as well as a novelist.

LADY MONTAGU. Selected Letters.

Lady Mary Montagu, who lived from 1690 to 1762, derived her marvellous literary talents from her relationship to Henry Fielding, the novelist, and Sir John Evelyn, the diarist.

LEAVES OF GRASS. Selections. By Walt Whitman.

Walt Whitman is looked upon as the one distinctive American poet, the product of our New World democracy. Though perhaps lacking in grace, his poems are inspired by his enthusiasm and humanitarianism, and in every line the reader sees the personality of the poet—noble, generous and lofty—a great man in the highest sense of the word.

LETTERS TO A YOUNG MAN ABOUT TOWN. By William Makepeace Thackeray.

These charming but comparatively little known essays originally appeared in Punch, and, until the present edition, have been reissued in a volume by themselves but once, and then in a privately printed book now extremely rare. In his humorous and satirical manner, Thackeray shows up the follies and life of a young man about town in the middle of the nineteenth century.

LITTLE BOOK OF EASTERN WISDOM. Collected by Rev. Claude Field, M.A.

A notable collection of epigrams, quotations, etc., from the immortal philosophers and sages of ancient times.

LITTLE BOOK OF GERMAN WISDOM. Collected by Rev. Claude Field, M.A.

A choice collection of epigrams, quotations, etc., from the famous German statesmen, authors, etc.

LORD CHESTERFIELD'S LETTERS. Selections.

These letters of sound counsel and practical advice, addressed to his son, Philip, are what Lord Chesterfield's reputation rests upon, and it is through these that the name of Chesterfield has become symbolic of culture and refinement.

LOVE LETTERS OF A VIOLINIST. By Eric Mackay.

Originally published in England, with the name of the author suppressed, these charming love sonnets created much discussion as to authorship, some even claiming they were the work of Swinburne—from whom only it seemed could originate the fertility of thought, grace of language, ingenuity, skill in the ars poetica, wealth of words, and classic resources.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. I. By L'Abbé Prévost. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. II.

Not only in French, but in the emotional literature of our world has Manon Lescaut taken a classical place, and is a profound lesson drawn from weakness of human nature.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. By Edward Everett Hale.

Written to foster patriotism during the Civil War, "The Man Without a Country" still holds to-day as large a claim as ever on the English-reading public.

MEN AND WOMEN. By Robert Browning.

Browning is known the world over for his deep-veined humanity and rare faculty of dramatic representation. These poems have as much red blood in them as the dramas of Shakespeare. The present volume contains all the principal favorites which have sung themselves into the memory of every reader who loves vigorous, manly poetry.

MILTON. By Lord Macaulay.

A profound and masterly essay on the leader of English literature of the seventeenth century by the leading literary critic of the nineteenth century.

NAPOLEON ADDRESSES AND ANECDOTES.

Napoleon was not only a consummate genius as general and ruler, he was also a man of extraordinary personality. So much of his magnetism and personal charm is preserved in these anecdotes and speeches that we become completely en rapport with the great emperor and cannot fail to share the enthusiasm of his contemporaries.

OLD CHRISTMAS. By Washington Irving.

An ideal picture of an old-fashioned Christmas in rural England. The good old customs, and the quaint games handed down from generation to generation, are pictured in a most interesting manner.

REMARQUE (Continued)

PASSION IN THE DESERT, AND AN EPISODE IN THE REIGN OF TERROR. Selected Prose Works of Honore de Balzac.

Balzac is thought by many competent authorities to be the greatest novelist of the world. His short stories are quite as remarkable in their way as his longer stories, and the very best of them are to be found in the present collection.

PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By Bernardin de St. Pierre. With a biographical sketch of the author.

One of the most beautiful works in romantic literature, a production which gave St. Pierre everlasting fame.

PETER SCHLEMIHL. By Adelbert von Chamisso. With a biographical sketch of the author.

This fantastic tale has attained world-wide fame. Founded on the old superstition that the devil could take a man's shadow, poor Peter is driven from town to town and wanders over the whole world. To the young this story appeals as a fairy-tale, but for others it has a deep ethical significance.

POEMS OF SENTIMENT. By Byron.

Probably no poet in the English-speaking world has ever held as high and well recognized a position as a "sentimentalist" as George Gordon, Lord Byron. His master lyrics dealing with the subject of love, consisting principally of his shorter poems, have been selected and edited with the greatest care for this edition.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. By Benjamin Franklin.

A selection of the best sayings from the numerous issues of "Poor Richard." Helpful and inspiring; the work of a most practical mind, written for a most practical nation.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS. By Dr. John Brown.

"Rab and His Friends," a story of a mastiff, full of beauty and pathos. In this volume the story of Marjorie Fleming, an interesting case of remarkable precociousness, is also published.

RECESSIONAL AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Departmental Ditties.

RIP VAN WINKLE AND THE LEGEND OF SLEEPY HOLLOW. By Washington Irving.

These immortal stories of Dutch life in colonial New York are the best pieces of writing that Mr. Irving contributed to literature. The pathos, quaintness, and wit are impressed upon the reader in a striking way.

ROCHEFOUCAULD'S MAXIMS.

These maxims, written by a cavalier of Richelieu's time, one who knew the world as few have an opportunity of knowing it, are witty, subtle and true. The author has grasped the whole of life, and weakness of human nature, of fashion and conventionalities are strongly depicted.

RUBAIYAT OF OMAR KHAYYAM.

The "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" is one of the greatest contributions that the East has given to literature. The subtle thought, the soft Oriental imagery, and the delicacy of the poetry will appeal to the poetic imagination of all ages.

SALOME. By Oscar Wilde.

Originally published in French, "Salome" was translated into English the following year, and since then translations have appeared in Spanish, Swedish, German, Polish and Russian, showing the truth of the German statement that to-day Oscar Wilde is a "World's Poet" and "Salome" a "World's Play."

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL. By Sheridan.

Sheridan's comedies are second only to Shakespeare's. "The School for Scandal" undoubtedly his masterpiece, has had an undiminished popularity from the moment it was published to the present day.

SELECTED POEMS. By John Boyle O'Reilly.

Through several causes, but not lack of merit, Boyle O'Reilly is fast becoming merely a name to the generation of to-day. Therefore, pains have here been taken to perpetuate the choicest productions of his pen—poems worthy of rank with the masterpieces of English literature.

SESAME AND LILIES. By John Ruskin.

However varied Ruskin's writings are, they are ever inspired with an artistic spirit and a desire to awaken a love for the beautiful. In these charming essays on literature and other subjects no better example of his strong ethical temperament can be found.

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY PAPERS. By Addison.

The famous "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers" are not only treasured by all students of English literature, but by historians as well. For nowhere do we find a finer description of English life in the eighteenth century than in these papers. Furthermore, in the character of Sir Roger we find the finest delineation in English literature of an ideal gentleman.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER. By Oliver Goldsmith.

"She Stoops to Conquer" is a comedy abounding in the keenest wit and satire. Human nature is depicted by a masterly observer, and the characters of the play are true to life.

SKETCHES OF YOUNG COUPLES. By Charles Dickens.

Some of the earlier sketches of the immortal Dickens, in which, however, are seen the clear and wonderful characterizations unequaled by any other modern author, and even unsurpassed in his later and better known works. His people live before you.

SNOW-BOUND. By John Greenleaf Whittier.

" 'Snow-bound' may fairly be said to sum up Whittier's personal experience, and yet so absolutely free is it from egotism that it has taken its place as the representative poem of New England country life.

SOME FRUITS OF SOLITUDE. Reflections and Maxims. By William Penn.

"To quote a book like this were impossible; at least one can hand it on, with a wrench, one to another. Some of the 'Fruits' are sounder, juicier, and grown against a sunnier wall of experience than others, but all are delicate, and the little basket which holds them will be found in all times and places a peaceful and sweet companion."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE. By Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

In the "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a most exquisite series of love poems, we have Mrs. Browning at her best. She has broken away from that stiffness and artificiality which characterizes her earlier poems, and in sentiment and lofty rhyme is at times truly Shakespearian.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT. By Matthew Arnold.

An epoch-making essay, by one of the most cultured, practical and inspiring minds of our century.

REMARQUE (Continued)

TALES OF A WAYSIDE INN. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Containing some of the best of his shorter poems, the first part of which was brought out in 1863, and which met with immediate success.

THOUGHTS OF MARCUS AURELIUS. Selections.

Marcus Aurelius was the purest and loftiest of the pagan philosophers. "His great work, 'The Thoughts,'" says Lecky, "not only forms one of the most impressive, but also forms one of the truest books in the whole range of religious literature."

UNDINE. By Baron Friedrich de la Motte-Fouque.

The charming and graceful narrative, Undine, is a gem in German literature. It breathes of the fresh fragrance of the woods, and is animated by beautiful thoughts that people the sea and air with nymphs and spirits.

UNTO THIS LAST. By John Ruskin.

Four essays nominally upon wealth and the acquisition thereof, feelingly described by the writer himself as "the truest, rightest-worded and most serviceable thing I have ever written." Present day developments strikingly justify the reasonings and conclusions of this pioneer sociologist and altruist.

THE VALUE OF TIME AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Sir John Lubbock.

Further maxims and conclusions of a great and wise optimist as well as a thoroughly modern thinker and teacher. In style and matter they deserve an equal place among the productions of the great classic writers.

VAMPIRE AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Barrack Room Ballads.

VIRGINIBUS PUERISQUE. By Robert Louis Stevenson.

Since, unfortunately, most of our juvenile literature nowadays is the work of "hack" writers, it is refreshing to find a work for boys and girls written by a man of genius. "Virginibus Puerisque" stands high among Mr. Stevenson's writings, and is enjoyed by both old and young.

VISION OF SIR LAUNFAL. By James Russell Lowell.

This great poem is drawn from the famous romance of King Arthur and the Holy Grail, a theme which has furnished inspiration to so many great minds. The "Vision of Sir Launfal" is the best of Lowell's shorter poems.

REMARQUE (Continued)

WERTHER. By J. W. von Goethe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

To appreciate the romantic and sentimental nature of the mighty Goethe one must read Werther. Though o'ershadowed by the author's other works, yet Werther alone would have made him immortal.

WILL O' THE MILL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH. By R. L. Stevenson.

This little parable of a life contains a wonderful moral and is also an irresistibly fascinating story in itself, written in the most exquisite English. Many critics think it Stevenson's masterpiece. It is prefaced by a careful and adequate biographical sketch.

WIT AND WISDOM. By Sidney Smith.

Extracts from Smith's writing and conversations which flash with repartee, good-tempered satire, brilliant strokes of wit, and are characterized throughout by shrewd, irresistible common sense. The comments on America and Americans are alone worth the price of the little book.

SYMON, J. D., and S. L. BENSUSAN

RENAISSANCE AND ITS MAKERS, THE

The purpose of this book is to lay before the general reader the main tendencies of the epoch that laid the foundation of modern life and thought. It also serves as a guide to the best of the vast literature of the subject, and will direct to the sources of further information those who wish to fill in the outlines indicated.

The Renaissance movement in Italy is traced to its source and the consequent progress throughout Europe is set out in the historical order. The story is not confined to the Revival of Learning, but embraces its influence on Art, Philosophy, Social Life and Character. An effort has been made to focus in easy narrative the transition from Mediævalism to Modernism, and give a succinct account of the Fourteenth Century Revolution and its consequences for succeeding generations. Beginning with St. Francis of Assisi, the story ends with Francis Bacon. The method is episodic. We see the qualified Renaissance premonition in Dante, the last great Mediævalist; we observe the new spirit active in Petrarch, the first great modern, and in his pupil, Boccaccio. We follow the Renaissance beyond the Alps, into Germany, where Renaissance becomes Reformation; into the France of Rabelais, the Spain of Cervantes, the England of Sir Thomas Moore.

The book, which should form a useful introduction to the masterpieces of Symonds, Voigt, Burckhardt, Muntz, and above all, Walter Pater, is copiously and beautifully illustrated in color and black and white.

THE ENGLISH YEAR

"The English Year" is an endeavor to present by word and picture the meaning and savor of the months and seasons. Wind and rain and frost; birds and beasts and insects; grasses and mosses and trees; the stars, even the accidents of our almanacs, combine to give each month a very distinct character. Without in any way attempting to exhaust the category, the authors have described under each month what is most characteristic.

The series of beautiful plates from some of the choicest efforts of living English artists, combined with Mr. Seaby's delightful drawings (nearly 200 in number), go to make these volumes undoubtedly the most charming nature books ever published.

REV. WILLIAM H. BOOCOCK,
DIRECTOR OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Rev. John Herman Randall, D.D.,
Mount Morris Baptist Church, New York, N.Y.

April 21st, 1916

My Dear Dr. Randall:

It occurs to me that you may be interested in knowing the use I have made of your book "A New Philosophy of Life" this winter. I have had three classes using your book as a text book, one a young men's class, another a young women's class, and the third an adult study class for men and women. For a number of years I have traveled the same road that you have been walking in, as evidenced by your book. I have read much along this line. Your book impressed me as putting in popular form and with great sanity and reasonableness the central truths in the newer thought about religious things. After reading it carefully, I decided to use it as a text book in a number of classes. My object in writing to you is to tell you that the book has made a deep impression on the members of these classes and the interest has been sustained to the very end. It has appealed in a special degree to young men, some of whom have told me that it is the first time that religion has been so presented as to bring it home "to their business and bosoms." The discussions have shown their interest.

With much appreciation of the service you have rendered in writing this book, I am

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) WM. H. BOOCOCK.

Ralph Waldo Trine's Books

inspire you to bring out the best that is in you. They are known and read throughout the civilized world. Few writers of even the most popular fiction have a larger audience, and none can boast the accomplishment of more widespread and lasting good. Grateful letters from all parts of the world come daily to Mr. Trine assuring him that his books have turned failure to success and awakened to conscious, vital realization powers until then dormant in his readers.

If you have still to discover the way to your own greatest powers, if you have a son or daughter about to assume life's more serious duties, if you have a friend who can be helped by wholesome advice, Ralph Waldo Trine, in the books below has a message of inspiration that has encouraged a multitude to better living.

General Literature

By DR. ALLAN McLANE HAMILTON

RECOLLECTIONS OF AN ALIENIST. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $3.50

Dr. Hamilton is perhaps the most distinguished alienist alive to-day; a grandson of Alexander Hamilton, and the author of "The Intimate Life of Alexander Hamilton," "A System of Legal Medicine," "Medical Jurisprudence," etc. From his boyhood, when Washington Irving was a guest in his father's house through many years as a leading New York physician, and as a traveler in Japan, China, Africa and on the Continent, Dr. Hamilton has been in contact almost continually with people of prominence. In recent years he has been in the public eye as an expert witness in the trials of Molineux, Thaw, Patrick, Robin, etc. The latter half of his book is devoted to reminiscences of these famous trials. The whole volume sparkles with anecdote—amusing stories of Agazzi, Mary Baker Eddy, Max Beerbohm, Henry Irving, etc., a hundred people of brilliant attainment and personal fame. The chapter on capital punishment, insanity and American legal procedure would alone make this one of the most important books of the year.

By E. V. LUCAS

Author of "A Wanderer in London," "London Lavendar," "A Wanderer in Venice," "A Wanderer in Florence," etc.

LONDON REVISITED. Illustrated. Net, $2.00

There is inexhaustible pleasure in seeing the cities of the old world through the eyes of E. V. Lucas. He has, in all his many books, caught the wonderful something which gives life and color and flavor to description and incident. The most expert and finished of wanderers here "revisits" London and finds in that vast composite fresh and untouched elements on which to exert his wonted skill in weaving veils of charm. Lovers of London who know it well, and those to whom it is the fascinating unknown, will delight in this new volume.

By E. V. LUCAS

CLOUD AND SILVER 16mo. Net, $1.25

Here is a chef d'ouvre; a little volume full of that subtle charm so characteristic of the author of "The Friendly Town," "The Open Road," etc. And surely we have the right to expect him to be at his best on subjects like these: "On Being Somebody Else," "On Good Ale," "On the Best Stories," "On Slang," "On Monocles." True, there is a grave, serious note in the eight sketches on Paris, Meaux, the Marne, and war-time London—a group of intimate pictures done as only Mr. Lucas can do them. But the shadow is only momentary—in the concluding half of the volume there is a witching group of tiny fables on flowers, and folks and animals.

By MRS. ALEC-TWEEDIE, F.R.G.S.

Author of "Women the World Over," "America As I Saw It," "Mexico As I Saw It," "Through Finland in Carts," etc., etc.

MY TABLE-CLOTHS: A Few Reminiscenses. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $3.50

Mrs. Tweedie's rich and varied life-experience has given us many most readable and delightful books—some of them highly important, all treasurable and interesting. This volume is like the privileged, intimate pleasure of "reminiscing" about prominent folk with a gifted, cultured, cosmopolitan woman. Wonderful gatherings there were around Mrs. Alec-Tweedie's table-cloths, and much is here of inside history, politics, letters, the woolsack and the stage—of all the arts and professions. A particularly happy gift-book, a book belonging to a kind of which every library must, in the nature of things, always have too few.

By CHARLES STELZLE

IF I WERE A PROHIBITIONIST 12mo. Net, $1.00

Mr. Stelzle is an experienced sociological investigator, and his point of view in this book is economic, not emotional; yet as he is also a man who has raised himself from the extreme of poverty in the crowded tenement district of one of the largest cities of the world (New York), he was not likely to bring to his subject academic theories in the place of first-hand knowledge of men and strong, honest feeling. One of the interesting points which Mr. Stelzle takes up is the question whether there would really be disaster for thousands of workingmen and employees of the liquor trade if national prohibition were adopted. It is such a book of common sense, able judgment and real knowledge of conditions as we have long needed.

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

CHILD AND COUNTRY 12mo. Net, $1.25

A book of the Lake Erie shore—of country, of stonework, rose culture, and child culture. These are but a few of many such expressions of what readers feel about it:
"A great many books are worth reading once; a much smaller number repay a second reading; and then come those few that not only can but should be read many times, becoming close friends to whom we turn again and yet again for refreshment and inspiration. It is among these last that 'Child and Country' belongs."—New York Times. "This is a book of the younger generation, evolving better methods in the education of the author's and other people's children in an atmosphere of purity and strength, and Mr. Comfort finds that in doing this work he builds something more substantial than a stone house. A book rich in life and love and human effort."—Christian Work. "An epoch-making American book."—Rochester Post Express. "There is a fine, high poetry, an excellent earthiness in the book throughout, as there is in the life at Stonestudy. Sunrise is different there. Food tastes better. It is perhaps this extra quality that is new in the world that will give long life to this remarkable book."—Chicago Evening Post. "More than likely it spells the first word of a larger fame for Comfort."—Salt Lake City Herald-Republican. "This book has more mental substance in it, more thoughts of the thinker, than any other and perhaps all of his other books."—Los Angeles Times. "There is a treasure rare in this unusual author's latest book."—New Haven Register. "His new book is one of the most splendid things Comfort has done."—Lexington Leader. "A book of great inspiration."—Review of Reviews. "It is at once a privilege and a duty to make its existence more widely known."—Life.

By A. WALLIS MYERS

THE LIFE STORY OF CAPTAIN ANTHONY WILDING
With Many Illustrations from Photographs. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Captain Wilding was the world's lawn tennis champion, known to every sportsman in the British Empire, and on the continent of Europe, popular in America for his brilliant performances in many of the Davis Cup Series. Of the 12,000 people who saw Captain Wilding play his last public match in New York City during the fatal August of 1914, just before the outbreak of the war, there is probably not one who does not recall with a thrill of admiration his superb physique, gallant personality, power and perfection of play. Written by an intimate friend, and including many of Captain Wilding's letters, some of them written under shell fire, this story of a strenuous life cut short will appeal not only to sportsmen but to every admirer of young and healthy manhood. It is illustrated with thirty photographs depicting Captain Wilding's activities in peace and war.

By MAURICE E. McLOUGHLIN

TENNIS AS I PLAY IT New Edition. Large 12mo., Net, $1.50
More than seventy photographic illustrations, with elaborate comments on each detail of them by the author. The most important outdoor book of the year!

"Far ahead of anything before published along the same line."—San Francisco Bulletin. "Far and away the foremost among the long line of books devoted to tennis."—Philadelphia North American. "No man living is better qualified to write a book on tennis. . . . a book that is practically certain to improve the game of any reader."—Cleveland Plain-Dealer. "Satisfyingly complete and eminently practical."—Town and Country.

In a newly revised edition of this very popular book, Mr. McLoughlin tells, in chapters entertainingly dotted with anecdotes from his experience in games from Europe to the Fiji Isles, just what things in tennis he has by experience found best. Stand and strokes, the new American service, the new value of back-hand, courts and rackets and tennis garments and balls, how to train, the mental attitude necessary for success, the relation of improving one's game to having pure fun out of the game—all this he tells for players young and old. A revelation as to the possibilities of tennis.

By WINIFRED JAMES (Mrs. Henry De Jan)

Author of "Letters to My Son."

A WOMAN IN THE WILDERNESS 12mo. Net, $2.00

Humorous, tender, and bubbling over with characteristic vivacity is this record of a cultured woman's exile in a country where books, pictures, and the comforts and solaces of life are yet unknown. The "wilderness" is not far from Panama, and the embarkation of bananas is the chief occupation of its people. With kindly but incisive wit, Mrs. James sums up the life of the neighborhood, and gives us picturesque glimpses of a region not over-written and extremely interesting. A thoroughly entertaining book.

By EDMUND DULAC

EDMUND DULAC'S PICTURE BOOK FOR THE FRENCH RED CROSS. With gay verses from the Old French, tales from the Arabian Nights, and 24 plates in full color. 4to. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.50

Though a number of magnificent books to further the cause of the Red Cross and like associations in this hour of need have been prepared, it is probable that none of them are so superb in themselves as is this new book by the great Dulac, all the proceeds of which are to go to that cause much beloved in America—the French Red Cross. Dulac's tenderest fancies and richest coloring appear here, and none of his books give so many variations of his versatile style—from fantastic Oriental designs full of rich colors and barbaric costumes, to a gentle portrait of an eighteenth century lover reading a sonnet to his lady, in a dainty old-world room.

MADAME MELBA'S GIFT BOOK

PUBLISHED IN AID OF THE BELGIAN RELIEF FUND. Illustrated in color and black and white. 8vo. Net, $1.25

Madame Melba's native land has honored itself and its great singer in this most beautiful book. Published in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund, from Cape York to Melbourne, and Cape Leuwin, the most distinguished talent of a great continent has been at Madame Melba's and Belgium's service. Its stories, its poems, its pictures in black and white, are of a very high order. The prima donna, in a touching preface, explains that there is a personal reason for the appearance of this book; her debut was in Brussels, and her memory of the "warm hearts whose generous recognition of the unknown artist from distant Australia gave me hope and courage to persevere" is one of undying gratitude. Every one who honors Belgium, who loves music, who appreciates a book of many delights, should be especially interested in this.

By AGNES C. LAUT

LORDS OF THE NORTH 12mo. Net, $1.35

A story of the early fur-trading days in Canada, when the great Northwest Company with its Indian allies and riotous Bois Brulees carried war into the heart of that vast empire, ruled over by the Hudson Bay Company. All the romance of Canada's early years is in this swiftly moving tale with its picturesque background of voyageurs, strong, silent courier de bois, roistering frontiersmen, and gentlemen adventurers of England. A charming love story runs through the tale, which is historically accurate. This book has now been added to the Doran list.

THE CONQUEST OF THE GREAT NORTHWEST 8vo. Net, $2.00

New Edition in One Volume

Agnes C. Laut, the author of "Lords of the North," "Pathfinders of the West," etc., has written a brilliant history of the "Gentlemen Adventurers of England," the Hudson Bay Company. Two hundred years of romance in the Northwest—from the days of Hendrik Hudson down to the Riel Rebellion—this is the authentic story of the most famous commercial institution in the world.

By WARREN H. MILLER

Editor "Field and Stream." Author of "Camp Craft," "Boys' Book of Hunting and Fishing," Etc.

AIREDALE SETTER AND HOUND. With a Chapter on the Pointer and Irish Setter. Illustrated. 16mo. Net, $1.50

"To concentrate on the hunting dogs and let the rest go, is the part of wisdom for the sportsman," says Mr. Miller, editor of Field and Stream, author of "Camp Craft," "The Boys' Book of Hunting and Fishing," etc. And in this small volume he has described in detail the selection, ideal rearing and training of the four principal hunting breeds from puppyhood to maturity. How to pick out, raise and train a pup—setter, pointer, airedale or hound—is carefully and adequately explained in this little book; and it is no dry, didactic treatment, but rather a story of certain of the author's own dogs. Readable and interesting as a document of human nature, this record of "dog nature" belongs in the library of every sportsman.

Concerning Preparedness

By WILLIAM FREEMAN

AWAKE U. S. A.! Are We in Danger? Are We Prepared? With over Seventy Diagrams. 8vo. Net, $2.00

Overwhelming in its evidence, clear as glass in its amazing analysis of our unpreparedness, this volume points out the grave danger which is likely to threaten the United States the moment the present war is over. Seventy startling diagrams bring home the facts. Compact, tabulated—in a nutshell—here are the "vital statistics" gathered in a single book—a book with a jolt in it for every serious-minded American citizen. "As incontestable as the multiplication table."—Philadelphia North American.

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT

THE CONQUEST OF AMERICA: A ROMANCE OF INVASION. U. S. A., 1921 A. D. Graphically Illustrated. Small 8vo. Net, $1.50

An overwhelmingly convincing picture of what would happen if a strong military nation undertook our conquest. The vividness, the plain, direct conviction are more impressive, even, than its most dramatic and thrilling events. It is so real that one can scarcely breathe at times as one turns over the pages. Real people play their parts in it, our own real cities crumble and fall. The illusion is complete. Military tacticians have approved it, and government advocates of preparedness consider that it follows a highly probable course of events in the circumstances predicated.

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT

FEAR GOD AND TAKE YOUR OWN PART 8vo. Net, $1.50

The most timely, the most arresting and absolutely the most important book Theodore Roosevelt has written, constituting an eloquent plea for "the larger Americanism." He writes as a statesman, taking the long view of policies, and a wide view which includes the whole world. He writes of what the United States should stand for internationally. He believes she has a heritage of devotion to freedom, of fighting for it, which forbids her to be still when a great word for right should be spoken; he conceives that her honor is bound up with the necessity of speaking at all times fearlessly against aggression. He would have our country strong, that her words may not be a cause for mocking. He does not believe that a strong nation is necessarily a quarrelsome nation, but, on the contrary, that we should have no peace but the most shameful if we continued to refuse to supply ourselves with means of defense in some relation to the coasts we have to defend, to the wealth and numbers of the nation. He has written earnestly, fearlessly, definitely.

The Peoples and Countries at War

By FRANCES WILSON HUARD

(La Baronne Huard)

MY HOME IN THE FIELD OF HONOUR

With Illustrations by Charles Huard, Official Painter of the War to the Sixth Army of France 12mo. Net, $1.35

A gem-like narrative, sparkling in its clarity, and the most remarkable picture of the War from the standpoint of the woman left behind, of the civilian population of invaded country, that it has been permitted the bystanders of the world to receive from one of the actual sufferers. All circumstances combine to make this, from every possible angle, incredibly interesting and valuable. Madame Huard was in her chateau, sixty miles northeast of Paris, in charge of the safety of her young-boy and woman servants, in the days of von Kluck's great drive to take the capital. It is enough to say this: to attempt details in brief would be to desecrate with clumsiness what is assuredly a work of art in its simple, colorful, intense and thrilling narrative—dramatic by power of fact and the author's fine apprehension of its quality, and not by craft of arrangement. The facts are so tremendous that the finest art has been the simplest relation, incident by incident, of the truth.

THE LONDON TIMES DOCUMENTARY HISTORY of THE WAR

A Work for All Nations and for All Times

Vol. I. Diplomatic. Vol. I
Vol. II. Diplomatic. Vol. II
Vol. III. Naval. Vol. I Octavo. Each, Net, $6.00

Remaining Volumes in Preparation.

Of vital importance to Government Departments, Public Libraries and all students of the War throughout the United States, is this series of official war documents, assembled, classified, indexed and cross referenced—a body of authoritative data putting on record the facts of the present titanic conflict in such a manner as to satisfy the strictest demands of the investigators of the future, whatever their nationality or prejudice. Presented without bias or expression of opinion, these documents speak for themselves—a great, orderly column of diplomatic notes, official reports, parliamentary and other governmental statements, neutral as well as belligerent. The permanent value of such a compilation to the student of history needs no argument. The first two volumes contain the diplomatic correspondence of the belligerents at the outbreak of the war (the official Blue, Green, Yellow, Orange, White and Red Books). The third volume contains documents concerning naval operations. Succeeding volumes will consist of the documents in the war as they may be assembled, and will treat of every phase of the war as dealt with by the state office and officers of the nations involved.

By EMIL WITTE

REVELATIONS OF A GERMAN ATTACHÉ

Ten Years of German-American Diplomacy, with an introduction by Slason Thompson. 12mo. Net, $1.00

This is an intimate account of the experiences of Emil Witte with the German Embassy at Washington and at the Foreign Office in Berlin from 1898 to 1907. His exposé of the "inside" machinery at the German Embassy under Herr von Holleben, and the subtle attempts to break down American patriotism among the sons of Germany in this country appears at a most timely moment. His revelations of Germany's editorial policies and opinions during the Spanish War are particularly important, and the record of press comments—both German and American—from 1898 to 1907 is of genuine documentary value. Herr Witte was one of the editors of the Deutsche Zeitung at Vienna at the opening of the Spanish-American War, and almost the only editor in the Central Empires to advocate the cause of the United States.

By PROFESSOR J. Y. SIMPSON

THE SELF-DISCOVERY OF RUSSIA. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $2.00

"There is no reason," argues Professor Simpson, "why the present Entente should not be lasting. All Russian ambition will be satisfied with the Straits opened up and in our hands. The idea of an advance by her upon India is groundless. Russian temperament precludes the possibility of Russia ever acting as Germany is acting today." This, in brief, is Professor Simpson's theme and he has developed it convincingly. His book, based on a very recent visit to Russia, includes a most important discussion of the vodka prohibition and its beneficent effects, political and moral. He describes the work of the Red Cross, analyzes the problem of religion in Russia today, presents clear and impressive reasons why Russia should be given a permanent outlet on the Mediterranean. This is a volume of importance to every serious student of world affairs.

By LIEUT.-COL. J. H. PATTERSON, D.S.O.

Author of "The Man-Eaters of Tsavo," Etc.

WITH THE ZIONISTS IN GALLIPOLI. Maps. 12mo. Net, $2.00

That most interesting personality who gave us the thrilling "The Man-Eaters of the Tsavo" and "In the Grip of the Nyika," has written of his experiences as commander of the Zion Mule Corps in the Dardanelles campaign. He had a command unique in modern history, since no military unit of Hebrews is recorded from the days of the Maccabees till now. A mule corps was raised from Russian Jews, refugees from the ferocity of the Turks, who placed themselves at the service of England, Russia's ally. Curiously, for General Maxwell, who made the appointment, was quite unaware of Colonel Patterson's lifelong sympathy for and interest in the Hebrews, this friend of their race was put at their head. What they encountered, the never-to-be-forgotten story of that disastrous campaign, is as deeply interesting as the important work of his own men. Certainly not less valuable is the illuminating and critical presentation of the whole plan and conduct of the expedition by a distinguished soldier who has served the Empire almost all his life—in many lands: in India, in South Africa, in Egypt, and even with the American Northwest Mounted.

By THE MAN WHO DINED WITH THE KAISER

MY SECRET SERVICE. Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $1.00

Nothing has been done by any newspaper man—in this war which has marked the downfall of the correspondent as a figure of importance and power—one-half so remarkable as the feats of this anonymous but fully authenticated neutral. And no old hand—not Kipling's "Nilghai" with his eternal scenting of "trouble in the Balkans in the spring"—could have bettered this astounding record. Owing much to England, he went, unasked, in her behalf, though not as a spy and not in her service. He worked in the Krupp factories; he heard, at Constantinople, from the lips of Commander von Hersing, the story of his voyage in a submarine from Wilhelmshaven to Constantinople; interviewed Enver Pasha; dined with the Kaiser at Nish, at the famous banquet with King Ferdinand; traveled in the first Balkan express running from Constantinople to Berlin; saw the jubilation of the Turkish capital at the evacuation of Gallipoli—and went in danger of his life, as an account of his first two visits were published in a newspaper before he completed his final adventure, and he used the same name on each journey.

By SIR MAX AITKEN, M.P.

(The Canadian "Eye Witness")

CANADA IN FLANDERS. With a Preface by the Rt. Hon. Bonar A. Law and an Introduction by the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, G.C.M.G., M.P., LL.D; with Maps and Appendices. 12mo. Net, $0.50

The official eyewitness for Canada on the Western battle-front, Sir Max Aitken, tells the imperishable story of the heroism of the Canadian regiments. Neuve Chapelle, Ypres, Givenchy, Festubert—the names will live on their regimental flags and in the hearts of Canadians and Englishmen forever. Sir W. Robertson Nicoll in The British Weekly declares: "I have no hesitation in saying that Sir Max Aitken is to be ranked with Sir William Napier in his power of describing a battle." Says the Manchester Guardian: "He writes an easy style, and when describing a complicated battlefield can bring clear pictures of events before the reader." While the Observer remarks: "What Agincourt is to the English reader of Shakespeare, Ypres will be to unborn Canadians. . . . We can wish for no better telling of the heart grips in a great battle." These are but a few of many such comments on this account of the magnificent patriotism of our Northern neighbors who have gone forth at the call of honor.

WHAT GERMANY THINKS

Being the German Viewpoint of the Great War. 12mo. Net, $1.25

What do the Germans, the German people outside the military class, really think about the War? It is one of the most perplexing and exciting of questions. Do the views of Viereck and his kind, in this country, really represent them? Why did the Socialists of Germany so fail the world at their test? Were they deceived? What of the Intellectuals? Professor Smith, formerly English lecturer at the University of Erlangen, lived and talked and thought with Germans. He has had that free access to their press, which is denied us, and he gives us astonishing excerpts. He knows the truth about their ways of thought and their specific opinions, and he tells it. It is quite different from the popular conception.

Translated by Florence Simmonds

AMONG THE RUINS 12mo. Net, $1.50

Senor Gomez Carillo, a favored Spanish war correspondent, was among the first to visit those beautiful parts of France recovered from the Germans since the Battle of the Marne. An interesting and graphic picture of the country just as it was when the tide of war rolled back, and the first account of a European neutral. It is critical of some of the tales told, not credulous nor inclined to exaggeration—but apparently there is no possibility of exaggeration in some cases. The narrative is particularly readable for a vivacious style.

Drawn by EDWARD J. SULLIVAN

THE KAISER'S GARLAND 4to. Net, $2.00

Perhaps more striking than the poetry of the war—if we except a few gravely beautiful things like "August, 1914"—are the remarkable cartoons depicting its phases, and especially those lampooning the Kaiser. There is no mistaking the absolutely irreconcilable horror of his work and ways which has seized on mankind outside of the Triple Alliance. And the feeling in England has come pictorially to its highest expression in the eighty-four cartoons of Edward J. Sullivan gathered in this volume. They are full-page line-drawings, with no text matter save introduction and captions. Their cleverness, their expertness, their decorative beauty, great as they are, scarcely reach the consciousness, so moving is the spirit of the grimmest, most implacable detestation, of satire etched in with the acid of scorn. To the end the horror grows, the impression sinks and deepens, of all the beautiful things that are crushed and die because a monstrous ego has gone mad.

FROM THE TRIPLE TO THE QUADRUPLE ALLIANCE

8vo. Net, $1.50

When, on May 23, 1915, Italy startled the world by taking up arms against Austria and actively deserting the Triple Alliance, students of international affairs wondered what causes lay back of her action. In this significant book, Dr. Dillon points out that why Italy went to war is a much less difficult question to answer than why she ever became a member of the Triple Alliance. "For," says Dr. Dillon, "there is something incongruous in the close partnership between a nation whose political ideals, social standards and pacific strivings so closely resemble England's and two military empires whose aggressive designs, reactionary conceptions and military organization are an emphatic negation of those." A permanent contribution to the literature of the Great War, this work contains revelations of German intrigues in Italy so astounding that they cast an entirely new light on certain chapters of Italian History.

From the Famous German Classic by Dr. Julius Stinde

THE HAUSFRAU RAMPANT

12mo. Net, $1.30

This book is a translation of the famous German series, "The Buchholz Family," by Julius Stinde. It consists of letters by "Frau Wilhelmina Buchholz," describing the amusing adventures of her family in bourgoise German society. The original series, published in the 70's, suggests Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" and the succeeding volumes, developed a popularity not unlike that aroused by the famous American series, "The Peterkin Family." The condensed translation now offered is a selection of the best letters from the four volumes—a book which will be of interest to all lovers of German literature. Frau Buchholz, sober, dense, naive; Carl, her husband; Emmi and Betti, their two daughters; Frau Bergfeldt, neighbor and enemy; their tea parties, picnics and amateur theatricals are overwhelmingly ludicrous. Every letter in this volume is one to read aloud and laugh over.

Ireland is represented in the fighting front of the British Army by 54 regiments, to say nothing of the hundreds of thousands of Irishmen serving in the regular English, Scottish and Welsh troops. These soldiers, with their astounding courage and their beautiful faith, their tenderness, as well as strength, have revived the old traditions of Irish military genius. Here is the history of their impetuous, fearless charges at Mons, Festubert, Suvla Bay and Loos.

THE ROAD TO LIEGE: The Path of Crime. 12mo. Net, $1.00

There have been books on the German atrocities in Belgium, expositions of Germany's policies of "frightfulness," and there are, of course, the voluminous documents of the War. But perhaps the most terrible of all is this new volume, THE ROAD TO LIEGE, dealing with the horrible atrocities committed just over the Belgian frontier—within a few hours or days after the declaration of war. All was prepared—"the destruction squads" were ready with their terrible apparatus; and this detailed story of their deliberate crime contains evidence that cannot be disputed.

Poetry and Drama

TODAY AND TOMORROW 12mo. Boards. Net, $1.00

Author of "Manhattan," "The Quiet Singer," and several other volumes, Mr. Towne is recognized as one of the foremost of the younger American poets, one skilled in the interpretation of the beauty of the world, whether the world of fields or the world of city streets. Although Mr. Towne has, for the past year, been busily engaged in editing McClure's Magazine. he has been able to add to his noteworthy achievements of previous years these singing lyrics of beauty; thoughtful, sensitive impressions of today's throbbing, changing life; deep notes of pain and protest vibrating to the fact of war. They register a distinct advance in his fine and individual talent.

LIFE AND LIVING Boards. 12mo. Net, $1.00

This third volume of poems by Miss Burr reveals a deepening, a strengthening, of emotional experience and sympathy—of that sheer human quality which has always been an important characteristic of her work. These are poems to own, to have near at hand, to re-read; for the persons who will not find at least several in this collection which reach down to the quick of their living must be few indeed. With a fine, serene music, a dignified, sure artistry, with color, and especially drama and picturesqueness, the special gift of this poet has always been her vibrant, thrilling sense of the wonder of the common experiences of humanity—the adventures of the spirit on its way through a various world. Her wide recognition is largely owing to this: by grace of it she is not only, or merely, a poet's poet but a people's poet in the better sense.

LUNDY'S LANE AND OTHER POEMS 12mo. Net, $1.25

A volume of collected work by a poet who has been widely recognized. William Archer, giving high praise to his work in "Poets of the Younger Generation," remarks that he is "above everything a poet of climate and atmosphere." This is true: and vigor of thought, closeness, oneness, of expression with thought, color, various and glowing; rich imagination—all these are characteristic of this singer of the Northern Woods and streams and hills. His is the instinctive, impulsive song of the Northland, natural as a bird-song—not of the bleak barrens, but of our beautiful temperate region. Instinct with the atmosphere of our own country, mistakable for no other on the globe, these poems—pungent, racy, strong and colorful, sometimes divinely musical—will appeal definitely to all North Americans.

THE WITCH OF ENDOR: A Tragedy. Net, $1.25

A poetic drama of Saul and his love and tragedy; marked by a very noble sense of beauty. An opening scene which instantly captures the attention; many moments of tense drama, chants and lyrics, impressive or sheerly musical and lovely, vary the texture and lend the theme relief. Passionately yet gravely beautiful, full of the finest poetic perception, this is a drama of sustained and uplifting quality. Innumerable felicities of imagination and workmanship have been lavished on this finished work, the definite achievement of a genuine poet.

Humorous

"SPEAKING OF OPERATIONS—" Cheerfully Illustrated by Tony Sarg. 12mo. Net, $0.50

This book has made the biggest humorous hit in a decade. "Have you read it?" from man to man, has sold thousands of copies. In it Cobb describes his own operation, paying his respects to his doctors—to all doctors! At that, the doctors seem to appreciate it perhaps more than any other group of human beings into which we could divide the readers. We've been cheerfully reprinting it until it would seem that "we, the people of the United States," in their entirety must have read it. But considering the latest census figures, we've decided there are a few people left, unfortunate that they have missed it, fortunate that it is still before them, to whom we solemnly declare: "It is the funniest book we've ever seen."

FIBBLE, D.D.! Illustrated by Tony Sarg. 12mo. Net, $1.00

"Fibble, D. D.!" (And he lives up to his name!) Here is Irvin Cobb at his funniest in a dry, ridiculously sober set of letters, ostensibly composed by a young curate in charge of a Boys' Camp. Guileless as a lamb, dense as a Scotch thicket, poor Fibble relates his hilariously miserable experiences with all the puzzled wonderment of a lost pup. Cobb has never written anything funnier.

THE MYSTERY OF THE HATED MAN AND THEN SOME. Fully Illustrated by the Author. 12mo. Net, $1.25

"Of course 'Miss Sticky-Moufie-Kiss' was not her regular census name, but everybody called her that, from Auntie Cerealine, the dear old negroid mammy who had been in the aristocratic Cloy-Cloymore family for 203 years, to Uncle Marsdon, or Junky-Wunky, as he was called by the baby lips of his niece." Flagg is at his best in this brilliant series—and Flagg's best, as you will agree if you have seen his clever fooling in the magazines, is quite on a level with his work as an illustrator. This volume contains chapters—screamingly funny chapters—on subjects ranging all the way from popular novels, automobile guide books, the "What to Wear" column in theatre programs, detective stories, Edna Ferber's Emma McChesney, to skits on "the care and feeding of husbands," "whisker culture," week-end parties, picknicking, "marriage vacations," Christmas, etc.

THE BOYS' BOOK OF HUNTING AND FISHING: PRACTICAL CAMPING AND GAME-FISHING AND WING-SHOOTING. Foreword by Dan Beard. With over 60 illustrations. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The best thing you can wish for your boy, and the best thing any boy can wish for himself, is the acquisition of the qualities that are encouraged by outdoor interests. It is never necessary to urge this to the attention of any proper man—or boy—for the instinct is there to answer any call. This is such a book of out-of-doors as the boys have not yet had: it is for them, meeting their problems, whether of physical limitation or financial; telling them how they can do things; just what they need to do them with; how to obtain, make, care for and use all the paraphernalia of the finest of outdoor sport. The chapters on camping will save many a heartbreaking experience, and are worthy of the attention of those who are no longer boys except at heart—to say nothing of the fact that they are so happily full of the spirit of the wood and field that they may well tempt the city-man and the stay-at-home to read just for the sake of reading.

THE WANDERING DOG. Illustrated with Dog Portraits. 8vo. Net, $1.50

Twenty-one years ago Miss Marshall Saunders told us the story of "Beautiful Joe." Since then over a million copies of the book have been sold, and it will be a welcome piece of news to the boys and girls who love "Joe" to know that another dog-story has been written by that same inimitable hand. Unlike "Joe," the hero of THE WANDERING DOG is a wire-haired terrier of "lang pedigree," who chooses to be a traveler. His adventures take him to the Bowery, New York, where, among friendly gossips, he meets and forms a friendship with a gloriously ugly bull dog in the slums. Together they explore the artistic precincts of Riverside Drive, making friends with "titled dogs" in Central Park. There is a delightful small boy in the picture, and the boy's Daddy figures largely in the plot. Like "Beautiful Joe," this is a story with a lesson for both grown-ups and children. An ideal gift book for a boy or a girl.

By WALTER RUSSELL

THE SEA CHILDREN. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, $2.00

Here is an ideal gift book for a boy or girl. A fairy tale of the sea, based on the old legend of the Sea Child who deserts his royal parents to live in the depths of the ocean. Once in many generations, says tradition, a child is born into a king's family, bearing on neck and breast a peculiar symbol; the child thus born grows ever fonder of the sea until the voice of the deep becomes like the voice of a mother calling. With its story of Prince Elworth, this book presents a fascinating combination of fairy tale and actual scientific information. The many elaborate and beautiful illustrations are finished with sufficient detail to give a child genuine familiarity with the habits and appearance of the denizens of the deep. There are pictures and designs on practically every page. The type is large and clear, the whole book decorative in the extreme.

A GILDED VANITY. With Jacket in Color and Decorative End Papers by Frances Rogers. 12mo. Net, $1.40

"She turned from the spot where they had stood hand in hand a moment before and walked away without a single glance. Warr looked back as exiled Adam may have looked toward Paradise. Years afterward he could hear the gurgling of the beautiful stream, smell the damp earth and the trees and recall each sunset hue. Then he followed Elizabeth in silence. Before they issued from the woods she spoke: 'I am very sorry—but you must let me take back a promise which I gave you just now. I can never be the wife of a poor man. I must marry for money!'" There is a surprise in this novel for all lovers of Richard Dehan, author of that grim epic of South Africa, "The Dop Doctor." This is a novel of English society life, the Riviera, Cannes, marriage-a-la-mode. There is a new lightness, a deft touch, a graceful modernity about this, the brilliant performance of a most distinguished woman writer.

By HORACE ANNESLEY VACHELL

Author of "Spragge's Canyon," "Quinneys'," etc.

THE TRIUMPH OF TIM. With Picture Jacket and Decorative End Papers by Frances Rogers. 12mo. Net, $1.40

In many ways this is the biggest book of the author of "Quinneys'," "Spragge's Canyon," "The Hill," "Loot," "Blinds Down," and many successful plays featured in England and America. It combines the finest elements of all of his books—from the romantic charm of his depiction of California mountains to his careful study of the growth of youngsters in dried-up, small English towns. While it is not in the least "autobiographical," it unites all the most interesting places and people Mr. Vachell has known in his adventurous life in California, England and France. It portrays a tiny English village; an old-time sailing-ship; ranching, real-estate speculation, and the remnants of the "splendid idle forties" of Spanish life in California; a Breton inn frequented by wild and eager artists; then England again and the stir of London. Work and women and the long wander-road harden the mental and physical sinews of a young Englishman, and in work he finds himself. Such are the outlines which Mr. Vachell fills in with rich human life.

Jacket in Full Color by Frances Rogers. 12mo. Net, $1.35

Here is a thrilling historical novel by Baroness Orczy, author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "The Laughing Cavalier," "The Bronze Eagle, "A Bride of the Plains," etc. In "Leatherface" Baroness Orczy has given us one more dashing, romantic figure to stand beside the ever popular Scarlet Pimpernel. This time she has gone back 350 years to the days of Alva and the Prince of Orange. Belgium, Holland and Flanders form the background. Her masked-hero spy is in the service of Orange; her heroine, the beautiful Donna Lenora de Vargas, Spanish by birth and upbringing. Historically accurate, as are all of this successful writer's tales, this is a gripping, fascinating romance of peril and adventure.

THREE SONS AND A MOTHER 12mo. Net, $1.5

"The wee house in which the Lawries were brought up was in a small grey town o the sea looking over to the hills of Cumberland. These were their Blue Mountain beyond which lay adventure and five kingdoms, each waiting for its prince an princess." Such is the charming Scotch countryside in which the brave-hearted widow Margaret Keith Lawrie, undertakes to clothe and feed her brood of five—three bonni boys and two lassies—on a paltry ninety pounds a year. She need not have done thi for her brothers were thriving men. But as they had never quite forgiven her fo marrying the gentle Reverend Thomas Nicol Lawrie, A. M., of Edinburgh, but th son of a butcher, they were unable to offer help without condescension. And neithe without condescension could Margaret accept so much as a good-day from man, woma or child. The vivid descriptions of the home life of the Lawries are filled with suc biting, sardonic humor and yet with such a deep, sympathetic understanding of th pathetic little inconsistencies and genuinely heroic qualities of human nature—an especially of Scotch nature—that once having read the story no one will eve forget them. And the careers of the Lawrie boys in the bustling English town o Thrigsby, whither they repair with their mother after her brother Andrew offers t put them in his cotton mill, are fascinatingly recorded with the peculiar skill an special atmosphere of Cannan. Jamie, the author's hero of the three sons, is a mos interesting creation. Admirers of Cannan will find this an important book, and ne admirers will be created.

With a Picture Jacket by W. L. Jacobs. 12mo. Net, $1.3

From the first glimpse of little David Blaize, sitting in the classroom on a hot Jul Sunday afternoon, chewing industriously on his wooden penholder, his cheek ink smirched by a paper dart, to the last glimpse of the Chapel on that other Sunda afternoon, when the terrible, lovable old Headmaster tells the School of the crisis i David's illness, one feels an over-mastering affection for the brave, open-hearted mischievous lad whose amusing adventures are so skillfully and truthfully portrayed Here is a rare book—as uproariously funny as Kipling's "Stalky & Co.," as fragran with sweet, wholesome sentiment as "Tom Brown at Rugby." A most important contri bution to the literature of boyhood, if only for the author's discovery of that powerfu well-spring of sentiment which is in every boy's heart.

THESE LYNNEKERS 12mo. Net, $1.50

The creator of Jacob Stahl, that remarkable trilogy which placed J. D. Beresford among the first six living realists, reaches a new high level in These Lynnekers—the author's most ambitious and (successfully) deliberate effort. Dickie Lynneker, from boyhood through adolescence to manhood, represents a character creation of permanent significance to literature. Very different from Beresford's former books in its cheerful, wholesome atmosphere, this fine-textured, vigorous novel is of even more importance to all lovers of the best in modern fiction. Built around a charming personality, the book is distinguished by an amazing illusion of reality in background. The treatment of the theme throughout is masterful. It is enough to say that lovers of Beresford will feel here no drop from the high expectations raised by the Jacob Stahl trilogy.

MICHAEL CASSIDY, SERGEANT

Here are the "plain tales" of the Great War—a book that Rudyard Kipling might have written! Like a packet of letters found on the body of some young soldier. Short, vivid, tremendous in their condensed emotion, full of war's rack and anguish, superb heroism and sordid tragedy. Sergeant Michael Cassidy, from Ballygoyle, is the story-teller; and when the tale is told one feels that there is nothing—absolutely nothing—more to be told of life at the front. Written in the trenches, by an English officer.

Vivid, tense, dramatic, this is a novel of strong men in the North. The story of his fight with the young Eastern college athlete who drifts into his camp is one of the most gripping scenes in recent fiction.

KINSMEN. With Full Color Jacket and End Papers by Frances Rogers.
12mo. Net, $1.50

Here is a story of early Canada and the Ottawa valley. Something quite new—a venture into that hitherto undiscovered country, the Canada of the Scotch Highland chieftains. Picturesque in its historical basis, it is equally picturesque in its fictional development. The Laird of MacNab, a Highland chieftain, comes to Canada with many of his clansmen, to establish in the new land an autocracy in which he can enjoy all of the authority—and greater wealth—that has been the prerogative of his ancestors. His wealth he acquires by the exploitation of his clansmen, quite unmindful of the yeast of democracy which soon begins to work in his followers. There comes the day when the secret society of the "Black Boys" overthrows him. The overthrow is complete, and the last of the lairds of MacNab leaves the "grant" with but two ancient retainers. Full of romance, with a wonderfully picturesque background and a quaint freedom of style, this book has the quality found in almost all the best Canadian novels—a quality easily recognized, if difficult to describe. It is perhaps a compound of a reminiscent literary style and of a fresh appreciation of Canadian life, with its enterprise, valor, and opportunity.

Picture Jacket in Color by W. L. Jacobs. 12mo. Net, $1.35

Good, old Anna! Simple, faithful, loyal to the English mistress she has served for eighteen years, and to the girl she nursed as a child. Send her back? Back to Germany, just because the countries are at war! As cruel as it would be absurd to suggest! So the minor Canon's widow in the little English cathedral town allows her to remain, in her spotless kitchen, and the quiet Anna of old becomes a bewildered, torn and troubled Anna, a tool of the astonishing German organization. How that organization uses the placid, industrious old serving-woman as a spy, how her new life touches the lives and problems, romances and tragedies of the suddenly-awakened English among whom she lives, makes a story to be read breathlessly and remembered long.

THE BRIDE OF A MOMENT

Carolyn Wells is not only a humorist, but even more essentially, a proficient weaver of mystery. Such stories of hers as "The Gold Bag" and "A Chain of Evidence" have enthralled many readers. The beginning of "The Bride of a Moment" stands unusual among all mystery stories: A smart wedding ceremony just over—the church filled with music, the heavy scent of flowers, the hush of spectators. A shot that punctuates like a period of fire the sentence: "—— pronounce you man and wife." Who could have fired the shot? No one and yet any one. The bridegroom? The clergyman? The best man? A bridesmaid? A spectator? A man in the choir-loft? A mysterious man who—the darky mammy swore—was seen peering in at the window? And what could have been the motive? What was the dread meaning of the piece of music found clutched in the bride's hand?

THE COMPLETE GENTLEMAN. With Picture Jacket by I. J. Schwankovsky. 12mo. Net, $1.35

Henry Wedlaw fashioned himself after his ideal of a "complete gentleman"—and what a mess he made of life! The extraordinary strength of this book lies in the inevitability of the story, the logical, convincing end to which it moves. The book holds a treasure of keen satisfaction for every reader who appreciates the rare quality of realistic truth in fiction. Henry marries for money; becomes a slave to convention; develops that curious inability to think in any terms but those of money; drifts—and drifts—until he is doomed to go on to the end of his days a snob at heart, bitterly selfish and selfishly bitter. This is a powerful piece of work—a piece of realism which will rank the author high among the writers of this important school.

The author of "James" and "Treasure" has written a novel of strong interest, one which will appeal to practically all women and to most men. Its study of the quietly wilful young man who marries a "finisher" in his father's hat factory, of the girl who has to face strongly-intrenched, stiff-necked relatives, and learn to live without discredit in a station of life to which she was never called, the development of her character, the surprises she is capable of giving to those who watch her elevation, the business interest which becomes more and more important, the sudden drama of the latter part of the tale—these are intensely human and absorbing elements of a novel which will be popular because of its well-realized and appealing characters.

THE LAST DITCH 12mo. Net, $1.25

By RING W. LARDNER

YOU KNOW ME AL 12mo. Net, $1.25

Straight to the heart of the baseball fan goes Ring Lardner's story. Its easy, colloquial sentences are complete "United States" and he tells in the perfect language of the game the adventures of a "busher" with a Big League team. No one knows better what he is talking about when he writes of the National game, and those who from the first swing at the ball to the last run for the pennant live, eat and sleep with BASEBALL for their grand motif, are wont to swear by him. And the humor, ingenuity, and entertainment of his narrative has won many delighted readers whose shame it is not to be quite sure they know an outfielder from a pitcher!

WHEN PAN PIPES: A Fantastic Romance. Picture Jacket and Decorative End Papers by Frances Rogers. 12mo. Net, $1.35

A novel for those who are young of heart—and for those who would grow younger by bathing their spirits awhile in the sunshine and showers of a simpler world. Here is the touching adventure of a sturdy, strong-souled little boy who is left strangely alone among those of another social status than that to which he was born, of his childish trials and conquests, of his growth in inches and in character, his love for a bewitching child-companion, of romantic adventures which befall him—all ending in the old, good way of happiness which not the most inveterate stickler for realities can ever quite outgrow. The charm of it all steals into the heart and settles warmly around it.

THE VERMILION BOX. A Novel. 12mo. Net, $1.40

By MARY AGNES HAMILTON

DEAD YESTERDAY 12mo. Net, $1.50

A novel of rare fineness. We have not had from any country at war so sane, so enduring a point of view presented in a work of fiction. It is not carried away by the pardonable blindness, the proneness to catchwords, of the times: here is an England sweeping into the great tempest of the war seen by one whose spirit refuses to exult in "glory" or to find a relief from spiritual pettiness in the vastness of the murder-fields. One who can see the utter tragedy of the failure of the International, of all the agencies of peace. It is no Bernard Shaw, delighting in telling scattered and stinging truths at the most appallingly unpropitious moments, it is not a critic of England's policy or motives in "going in"—it is simply one who will not compromse with the monster War, who insists on seeing it as it is. It is purely and entirely a novel, with no preachment or propaganda, but it is a story of people who are wholly alive in awful days. There are qualities in its characterization, in its living portrayal of human beings, which raise it high among contemporary novels. They are extremely modern people who live so intensely for the reader interesting lives in the places where things happen. There is a poignant love story which will not soon be forgotten. A book which on every possible count deserves attention.

THE GREAT PUSH
With Decorative Jacket by R. Rodman Bowker. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Here is a wonderful story of the famous charge at Loos when the boys of the Royal Irish dribbled a football across the shell-torn field to the German trenches, and Patrick MacGill, the young Irish author, charged with them. MacGill is the author of "The Rat-Pit," "Children of the Dead End," "The Red Horizon," etc. He came through the charge wounded, but alive. This is a marvelous tale—nothing like it has been given us. Other men have visited the lines—written in the trenches, told of fierce encounters—but always at second hand. Here is the story of the fiercest fight of all, told by a master writer, who actually went through the fight himself.

ROD OF THE LONE PATROL. With Picture Jacket by W. L. Jacobs.

When an old captain takes it into his head to devote himself to a small boy, teaching him to swim, and sail and handle tools, there is fun ahead for the boy. The good church members of Parson Dan's parish looked askance at first at old Captain Josh, but gradually as the old man developed a strong affection for the Parson's adopted boy, and then came to exercise a protecting guardianship over the lad, they began to change their minds. And Rod, of course, is wrapped up in the old captain. Only when he finds his long-lost mother in the form of the famous singer whom he hears in the great city, and is able to bring her back to the parsonage she had left so many years before, discovering his real relation to the old Parson and Mrs. Royal, does he fully understand the peculiar situation in which he has grown up. This is a pleasant, wholesome, entertaining story with many a good lesson in it for boys—a characteristic volume by the Canadian pastor whose books have won such well-deserved distinction.

With Picture Jacket by Frances Rogers. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The "Graustark" of the year! A rattling little romance, reminiscent of "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Puppet King," and Stevenson's "Prince Otto." The story of a young American who invades a tiny European kingdom, rescues the nearly-deposed Prince of the realm, and fights his way to the heart of the beautiful Princess. Slashing duels, hand-to-hand encounters, hair-breadth escapes—and a Happy Ending! Do you love an exciting story? You'll love this one!

THE POWER-HOUSE. With Jacket in Full Color. 12mo. Net, $1.25

"We were at Glenaicall—six of us—for the duck shooting, when Leither told us this story. Since five in the morning we had been out on the skerries and had been blown home by the wind, which threatened to up-root the house from its precarious lodgement on the hill. A nondescript meal—luncheon and dinner in one—had occupied us till the last twilight departed and we settled ourselves in the smoking room for a sleepy evening of talk and tobacco." The story Leither told was of a terrible underworld-wide secret organization, headed by a mysterious millionaire lawyer and his super-butler, an extraordinary ex-criminal by the name of "Tuke." It is a breath-taking tale of peril and adventure—just the story for a windy, rainy evening by the fireside, when you are in the mood for mystery and murder and the curdling joy of "detectiving."

THE PIONEERS. With Picture Jacket by Frances Rogers.
12mo. Net, $1.25

"The flavor of the faraway and the unaccustomed makes all the more interesting this story which parallels some of the conditions with which we are acquainted in pioneer fiction of our own country. Something of the piquantly exotic, indeed, hovers over both author and book, for Miss Prichard was born in the Fiji Islands and lived most of her life in Australia, until she went to London a few years ago to take up the writer's profession. This present book, her first long story, won the $5,000 prize offered by the London firm of Hodder & Stoughton for the best novel of early Australian life. It is so good and so well told a story and so seemingly truthful a picture of the time it depicts, so instinct with the spirit out of which grew the commonwealth of the island continent, that one feels like congratulating the prize-givers and judges of the contest upon having had so fine and significant a piece of work submitted to them.—*Bookman, N. THE IMMORTAL GYMNASTS. Color Jacket by F. Tennyson Jesse.
12mo. Net, $1.25

Is being greeted with a chorus of praise for its rare charm, its entrancing atmosphere. Columbine, Pantaloon and Harlequin, the harlequinade characters who, to Italy, France and England, have always represented the zenith of dancing fantasy, are in this exquisite tale given a new life. They appear in London (retired for a time from trudging the long highway) and keep the least prosaic of shops—one in which pots of cream, tiny moist cheeses and minted golden coins of butter smile upon fair blue tiles. Thus they bring a meadow magic to the dusty city, and all the time they use their immortal power to watch the hearts of lovers about them. To a girl who had found nothing but gilded loneliness in smart houses, they brought a lover, and their wise machinations give a charming novelty to this story of love and sheer beauty.

With Picture Jacket by Mable Hatt. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Mrs. Baillie Reynolds, author of "The Cost of a Promise," "A Doubtful Character," "The Girl from Nowhere," "The Notorious Miss Lisle," etc., excels in the depiction of English country life, with its lovely vistas of woods and lawn, and there is always a keenly exciting and human plot behind her descriptions of this peaceful land. In her new novel she has revived for this day of motors and aeroplanes one of the most touching of all love stories—Beauty and the Beast. The reader's affections are won by the girl Virginia and her plucky fight to be true to herself and her strange grim husband.

By J. MacDOUGALL HAY

Author of "Gillespie," etc.

BARNACLES. Picture Jacket in Color. 12mo. Net, $1.40

A few years ago, the publication of "Gillespie" drew attention to a new personality in literature. The promise of that remarkable first novel has been amply fulfilled in the second. Mr. Gilfillan, the banker, describes Barnacles as "one of God's own innocents," and no phrase could better sum up the simple, great-hearted musician who, with his fiddle drifts into the Paisley slums clustering under the shadow of Coat's Mill. Barnacles is a valiant crusader against wrong. "I just get into a rage when I see children barefooted and begging," he says, "or when the funerals of the poor go by. They have not died for anything . . . ." He is the son of a narrow-minded Renfrewshire farmer, has had part education at the University, and his father has brought him home to slave without wages. To buy a new fiddle, Barnacles "lifts" a sheep, and this results in his father turning him out. In Paisley he lives with a fish-hawker named Skelly, a veteran of the Boer War, and Skelly's father, a derelict seaman. The poverty of these people and their neighbors is grinding, but their goodness of heart is phenomenal. Delicately and without emphasising the blackness of the shadows Mr. Hay makes the reader realize the tragedy of the submerged tenth. The charm, the delicacy, the strength, and tenderness of this story are not easily definable. Mr. Hay writes with sure skill and knowledge; his characters suggest comparison with the exquisite art of Sir James M. Barrie.

OLD JUDGE PRIEST. A new story of this real American. With Picture Jacket by B. Cory Kilvert 12mo. Net, $1.25

Neither his humor nor his gravely vivid pictures of the Great War nor his star reporting nor his accomplishment of single, disconnected short stories whose names are enrolled among the classics of short-story writing has given Mr. Cobb such fame as the creation of "old Judge Priest," the tremendously human Kentuckian who is the central character in Mr. Cobb's "Back Home," and in the play created by Bayard Veiller from that book. The Kentuckian is no longer a mere fiction character, but a real man whom we all know and love, and in response to whose dry humor and rich humanity—expressed with Mr. Cobb's quick sense of drama—we thrill with laughter or with moistened eye. Judge Priest, in this second book, as in "Back Home," sums up and makes comprehensible the real America—the America of little towns dustily brooding under the maples, but suddenly arousing to scandal or amusing incident or the slow tramping of old soldiers.

By SAMUEL G. BLYTHE

Author of "The Fakers," "The Price of Place," etc.

A WESTERN WARWICK. With Picture Jacket by B. Cory Kilvert.
12mo. Net, $1.35

The keenest, cleverest, most convincing and significant of political fiction has been written by Samuel G. Blythe in "The Fakers," "The Price of Place," etc., and the big, silent manipulator of the destinies of a nation, maker of presidents, dispenser of millions, purchaser of men, who looms huge in this latest book is the best thing he has done. For his own political ends, the most enormous conspiracy of capital that has ever been conceived is planned and directed by him. The great money interests, in return for a government complaisant to extreme high tariff and immense monopolistic combinations, place almost unlimited millions in his hands to buy the country. He proceeds to buy it "lock, stock and barrel." Why? Just for power, for the game. It is wonderful in its shrewd reality. The personality depicted is fascinating in its interest and that his sole blind spot, his one stupidity—the incapacity to believe in one wholly unpurchaseable and unselfish human being who is not a fool—should bring about his downfall is the artistic triumph of this supremely interesting and all too suggestive book.

YOUTH UNCONQUERABLE 12mo. Net, $1.25

"And so, I suppose, I am penniless?" Cherry Hawthorne, student at the Oxford College for Women, faces the prospect blithely, and, in the end, successfully. Left an orphan by the sudden death of her father, she arranges to finish out her last year at school—and to make the most of it. How she meets the Duke of Skye; his gay love-making; their companionship in dance, hunt, race; the sudden end of it all, in the cruel transition to self-support as stenographer, charity worker, children's nurse—this is a swiftly moving tale. The figures of Cherry's two guardians—Saul Lytollis and Prince Florian, the young Italian nobleman, Menteith the aviator; Lavender, Cherry's girl friend, are all attractive characters—part of a book that is, first and last, entertaining, readable, a good story.

IN BRIEF AUTHORITY 12mo. Net, $1.30

All the charm and satire of the topsy-turvy world which delighted American readers in this author's "Vice Versa" years ago, and in its later dramatic adaptation as "Little Puck," for Frank Daniels, is to be found in this fascinating fairy tale of the stuffy, suburban family who are whisked out of their suburb of inescapable respectability to the marchen-land of people descended from Little Red Riding Hood and the fairy tales of Grimm. There is good fun—and keen irony—in Mr. Anstey's descriptions of the ludicrous attempts of these impossible suburbanites to rule in the Fairy World.

By W. PETT RIDGE

THE KENNEDY PEOPLE 12mo. Net, $1.25

The "English O. Henry" has here made a more extensive and dignified picture than in any previous novel. Indeed the quaint, brusk, inwardly-amused humor with which the author regards his characters is the most outstanding quality of the book. It is the story of three generations. From Old Man Kennedy with his vigorous assertion of his own ability to run the lives of all around him (and perhaps the world in general) to the temperamental son he spoiled both by interference and indulgence, and the grandson (just as temperamental but wisely managed by a wonderful mother), the Kennedy People are all interesting. There are many flavorful and pungent personalities, but the undoubted heroine is Cicely, wife of Old Man Kennedy's son and the shrewd, clear-eyed mother of young George. A readable, memorable novel of character with a happy Pett Ridge flavor.

CHAPEL: The Story of a Welsh Family. Picture Jacket.
12mo. Net, $1.25

A powerful book; an achievement. A strong story of the sort that has the study of character for its main interest, yet has a distinct plot and moves to an end. It is superbly written, with nervous terseness and economy of means. Yet there is much of intimate, human detail—only, it is all significant; nothing could be spared. It tells the story of two strong men who fought their way to wealth and influence not so much for themselves as with the ideal of restoring their decadent family to its old influence and to its own environment. There is a fine, wholesome, bonny woman who is loved by the younger man; there is a wonderful old crone who nursed father and son and at last the little grandson, and is astonishingly real; there is Graig, the broken man—there are some unsparingly grim and mysteriously touching characterizations, triumphs of the novelist's art. This is a writer to reckon with; a book not to miss.

THE WINDOW IN THE FENCE. With Jacket in Color, Decorative End Papers and Illustrative Head-pieces by Harold Sichel.
12mo. Net, $1.25

The man was 40. His partner was 35. He wrote and she drew. They had been married fifteen years and no longer expected spectacular things of life. They smiled at their one-time visions of fame—and tried to forget another dream they no longer even mentioned. Then they found their "window in the fence" and it opened to them a land of dreams made real, into which they stepped. No, it is not sugar-stuff: it is sweet as life is sweet, sometimes, when much is dared to make things come true. It is fragrant with out-of-doors, and sturdy with humanness and reality. A lovable book.

MISS PANDORA. Picture Jacket. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Beautiful, black-eyed, ivory-skinned Pandora! Did the gods mean to lend her attributes pregnant with misfortune or with those blessings of life which she allowed to escape? Her story is genuinely dramatic; her birth a mystery, her bosom friend the novelist-wife of a naval officer, who played the lover on that mad, bad night in Spain. Pandoras that are true to type possess gifts necessarily fatal to mankind, and the escapade which might have been a romantic memory proved tragic in its significance to these three people. Here is a story with all that perfection of style and superb sense of the inevitable which characterizes the best modern English fiction.

THE ROUND-ABOUT. Picture Jacket by Frances Rogers.

In "The Round-about" the author comes to the full maturity of her fine talent. This is a novel which will invite re-reading, which will be worth putting on a shelf with permanent books. A family of prosperous, middle-class people in early Victorian times is pictured in the opening chapters. The youngest of three daughters, a child at the beginning of the story, defies convention and marries a "common" man her family has insisted she is "not to know." The life of the little Alice, who dared, is set in contrast to the withering of the beautiful sister, who was proud, and the weak one who submitted to browbeating. It is a story of the invasion of the old order by new things in each generation. There is a special quality of reality in the likeable, understandable people.

A new book by F. Tennyson Jesse is an event of interest to the many who are aware of the very individual genius of this niece of Lord Tennyson. Stories which are stories first, of interest to any lover of tales, they are also remarkable for several things—clear hardness of outline, masculine vigor, very woman's tenderness and insight, and a power of conveying the look of things which is simple magic. Fine examples of the author's broadening art.

GOSSAMER. With Color Jacket by B. Cory Kilvert.

12mo. Net, $1.2

This book is achieving a peculiar success—applause like that of an audience beholding sleight-of-hand tricks; they are breathless with interest, and they "don't see how he does it." "There weren't any rabbits in the hat!" insists the small boy. "There isn't any plot," say the readers. Yet not one of the author's previous successes has been received with more joy than this brilliant, cynical, humorous, charming, touching study of an international financier. Like gossamer threads in an autumn field, says the author, the financial system spreads all over the world from the central offices of men like Morgan and the Rothschilds. This financier is not the stock figure of crudity which may possibly have had some truth for yesterday, but one new to literature. The personal problems of loyalty which come to him with the outbreak of war reveal many things of our modern world—its interweaving of nation with nation—and some new aspects of the breaking of the gossamer web.

LOVE IN YOUTH

With Jacket in Full Color by Frances Rogers. 12mo. Net, $1.2

Acquaintance with this courageous and original English author's peculiarly distinctive work will soon be as necessary a mark of the really modern reader here as it is in England. Unusual, and a revelation of a fresh and curious technique, this novel of the wonder of young love has an American man and girl, each of marked personality, for its central characters, and its scene is laid in the lovely South of France. It is modern as the motor that skims the white roads and, subtle as it is, with suggestions of a fine pastel, it is sharp and clean-cut as a newspaper story, the characters emerging clear and vital.

THE AMATEUR

With Jacket in Full Color by B. Cory Kilvert. 12mo. Net, $1.3

A story of American life that rings true—as true for today as "The Rise of Silas Lapham" for yesterday. The boy who comes from the mid-western city to learn to be a great illustrator in New York is a very real and human being; his experiences of the art-editors in their offices, of the studios—the kind with kitchenettes and the kind with Japanese servants and old tapestries; the riotous, artificial night life which his too-easy meretricious success opens to him; the sanity of the quiet people who save him in his tragedy of regenerating pain—all these are full of sincerity and conviction. It is largely a book of what we call—when we dare—middle class people, and it is a relief from the attitude of attempted "smartness" which blights much of our literature. It is a dramatic, honest and strong piece of work, meriting the attention of all who are interested in the development of a vigorous and racy American literature.

THE LEAST RESISTANCE
With Color Jacket by May Wilson Preston. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Stage stories—some of them are impossibly decked with gilt tinsel, some of them are grimly sordid—almost none of them are written by authors with actual first-hand theatrical experience. But Miss McLaurin now is, and for some years has been, on the stage, her experience ranging from productions on magic Broadway to the hard grind of one-night stands, and she here gives theatrical life as it really is, in its romance and hardship, its disillusionments and its pleasant comradeship of clever men and women. The career of a kindly little woman who was forced to leave her worthless stock-actor husband and had to fight for herself, who had to come out of tattered furnished rooms looking like Fifth Avenue and make the round of the managers' offices, living alone through encouragement and success and hard luck again, and who found friendship and understanding—this is powerful, real, enthralling.

THE BELOVED TRAITOR. Illustrated by Modest Stein with Jacket in Full Color. 12mo. Net, $1.25

One little, simple, lovely figure, wonderful in her elemental greatness of love, shines like a fixed star across the troubled waters of the great sculptor's life, guiding him home at last. This is a very unusual and powerful story, of deep feeling and definite humanity, of the simplicities and the conflicts of a genius, the terrible struggle between the enduring and the evanescent things, the temptations, the false values of his unparalleled triumph, the renunciation, and the real greatness to which he emerges. The woman who is, through all, the beacon of his life, is a remarkable figure, and will not soon be forgotten, with her wistful charm and noble love. The author of "The Miracle Man" and "Greater Love Hath No Man" has again succeeded in giving us an important, and a profoundly affecting book.

Americans who go abroad in pursuit of some radiant dream of "culture" and social triumph are not always hilariously crude. By FREDERICK NIVEN

THE S. S. GLORY. With Color Jacket and Eight Illustrations in Color by Fred Holmes. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Most men and women of the slightest virility find exhilaration in a story of gallant adventure through which blow the winds of out-of-doors, and which is quickened by a sense of danger overcome. But no few of these readers are decidedly weary of the conventional shabby plots and crude, unconvincing melodrama of almost all stories of adventure of out-of-doors. They are seeking a story of dramatic action, but also of reality. Such a real story has Mr. Niven here given us. In it he describes a voyage of a cattleboat—the S. S. Glory. He takes the cattlemen from their roaring, fighting, disobedient night in the waterfront dens of an American city, aboard the boat, out into the long rollers of open sea, through the fog of the Banks, at last up the Mersey and to the safe haven of the Liverpool dock. Through it all—and it is this which clearly distinguishes Mr. Niven's story from any adventure tale for a long while—he makes the details of the life so vivid that one re-lives it, and he makes every character so genuine, so distinguished from every other man in the cattle-crews, that one has for each of them all the affection or dislike one would have for the same characters in actual life. He weaves them all into the exciting and dramatic incidents of the most realistic of sea-yarns.

MARY SLESSOR OF CALABAR: Pioneer Missionary.

Ill. 12mo. Net, $1.50

The life story of "Mary Slessor of Calabar" rivals in many particulars the thrilling story of the devotion and the heroism of David Livingstone. The mission to Calabar was to what were regarded as the most degraded natives of Africa. Strange horors were practised among them; their land was peculiarly insalubrious—frequently even the negroes were visited by pestilential diseases of the swamp-lands where stronger tribes had driven them. It had one of the chief supply-areas for the slave-trade. And this poor Scotch lassie, who had been a weaver in the mills, went out among them to the strangest experiences, to almost incredible adventures and hardships, with little or no protection but her faith and courage, and worked what must be regarded as almost miracles of regeneration by the wonderful spirit that was in her. Her success was very great, and the results of her service will multiply as the years pass. She was one of the great and blessed missionaries of the Faith.

THE APOSTLES OF INDIA. The Baird Lectures for 1915

12mo. Net, $1.50

Records of the great Christian missionaries of all sects for nineteen centuries. Founded on the original sources of information, typical extracts are given from the actual words of the apostolic worker. A direct, vivid impression of personality is thus conveyed. Beginning with the tradition of Thomas Didymus, recording the labors and life of St. Francis Xavier and many others down to Alexander Duff, we have a narrative which, if it is of supreme importance to the special student of missions, is by no means without a truly fascinating interest for laymen. The romance of religious history is in these great personalities bearing witness to a great ideal, in the memory of them that is held by that great, teeming land, in the contact of civilizations and faiths.

OUTLINES OF MISSIONARY HISTORY
New and Revised Edition with Map. 12mo. Net, $1.50

A new edition of a valuable book, which has attained a wider popularity than is accorded to most books of its specialized type—partly because it fills a place all its own, but largely on account of its delightful readableness. It has been very completely revised and the facts brought down to date from 1912, the period at which the narrative of the earlier edition closes. There is also a map which will add to its value; and various minor changes which have presented themselves as desirable during the life of the book have been made. It is a careful and scholarly review of the spread of Christianity from New Testament times down to the present. The author, for all his scholarship, has never made terms with the dry-as-dusts. He has made it a pageant of peoples, and of the saints and martyrs who carried to them The Faith.

By REV. JAMES D. CORROTHERS

IN SPITE OF THE HANDICAP. Illustrated. Net, $1.25

This is vital, real, source-material—the stuff of which history and literature are made. The honestly-related experiences of an intelligent, educated colored man from his almost incredibly difficult and humble boyhood in southern Michigan to the time when he was held in equal friendship by well-known men and women is a part of the history, as it is a part of the drama, peculiar to the country which had to undergo a civil war to abolish slavery. It is a most unusual story, and its entire sincerity and frankness enables the reader to catch strange glimpses of little-known conditions, the little guessed psychology, of a burdened race. To all who are interested in humanity struggling up, in the race question in this country, in the history of the negro race, in strong and peculiar side-lights on American customs and beliefs in years too near to be historically clear, too far to be familiar, to all who are interested in a good story of a plucky fight, this will be a uniquely valuable book.

THE EVANGEL OF THE STRAIT GATE 12mo. Net, $1.25

Professor Clow has made for himself an important place in the leadership of evangelical thought. The title of this new volume suggests the treatment of the theme. The subdivisions of the book are I. The Parable of the Strait Gate, II. Led Into the Narrow Way, III. Entering in at the Strait Gate, IV. Finding Life, V. The End of the Broad Way.

THE RELIGION OF POWER 12mo. Net, $1.50

"The weakness of present-day religion lies in its superficial opinions; its real strength lies in its deep convictions; but deep convictions are impossible without root thinking and root thinking is radical thinking in the best sense of that term." So Dr. Kirk, pastor of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, James Sprunt lecturer at the Union Theological Seminary, Virginia, goes to the very roots of Christian faith with this brilliant, scholarly study of Christianity's power in history. "The modern man," writes Dr. Kirk, "believes in power, knows power when he sees it, and has a very clear notion that power makes history. I believe that the appreciation of Christianity's power in history is sufficient to give reality and strength to faith." In its genuinely constructive thought, this volume is one of the important books of the year.

METHOD IN PRAYER: HOW TO USE THE DEVOTIONAL HOUR.

This book represents a practical illustration of the value of Method in exposition and exhortation. The reader is led from one great prayer topic to another, by sure and measured steps of progress, singularly helpful alike to understanding and to memory. Dr. Scroggie discusses the various phases of prayer—adoration, confession, petition, intercession and thanksgiving. His chapters on the importance of confession, the proper subjects for prayer, and the application of intercession, are especially notable. Here is a helpful book by one who knows the way into the Presence, in reverence and in faith. There is an introduction by the Right Reverend H. C. J. Moule, D.D., Lord Bishop of London.

LIFE'S ADVENTURE. Sermons. 12mo. Net, $1.25

This volume of sermons on "Providence," "The Law of Non-Resistance," "A Tragedy of Blunder," etc., are from the pen of a distinguished Canadian pastor, whose discussions of present-day themes have won him wide recognition in this country as well as in the Dominion. Dr. Law does not flinch before the perplexing problems which have come with the tragic developments in the world's affairs. His quiet, courageous philosophy in the face of these problems will commend this volume to all who are interested in the questions of peace, providence and immortality.

THE SOUL-WINNER AND SOUL-WINNING 12mo. Net, $0.60

This valuable little book draws together a wealth of material, Biblical and otherwise, bearing on the saving of souls—the necessary desire, consecration and faith, the most tactful and useful means. It is not, however, merely a compilation; the author's choice of material has not been his only task, for his own comment is as keen and wise as the wealth of matter which he freely quotes or to which he points the aspirant to soul-winning.

By G. GRANGER FLEMING

THE DYNAMIC OF ALL-PRAYER 12mo. Net, $1.00

In his fore-word Rev. Dr. Alexander Murray says of the author: "I believe it has been given him of God so to state the case for prayer as will open the eyes of many to a new vision of its place and power in God's great scheme of redemption." The book insists on the place of prayer as an integral part of life—as the greatest privilege and the deepest necessity of any spiritual life. It is remarkable for its conviction and power, and many who have fallen away from prayer will find in it a great renewal of the sources of strength.

Author of "If God Be for Us," "The Weapons of Our Warfare"

ANCESTRAL VOICES . . . . . 12mo. Net, $1.50

Coleridge wrote "Ancestral voices prophesying war." The underlying thesis in these seven essays by the famous Glasgow preacher, Dr. Hutton, is that we are beholding in these troubled times a conflict between "the Ancestral Voices of the soul and the merely rationalistic and temporal way of conceiving man's true function in this world, and that the darkness which is meanwhile over the world is a protest of man's established and universal nature against a proposed sectional tyranny." Dr. Hutton discusses this theme as revealed in Nature by G. K. Chesterton, Coleridge, Ibsen, Tolstoi, Shaw, etc. This is a distinguished and exceptional series of essays.

By HERBERT BOOTH

TOYS AND THINGS . . . . . 12mo. Net, $1.00

Most of these little sermons to children have been delivered, almost exactly as they appear, in evangelistic meetings conducted by the writer in different parts of the world. The book had its origin, says Dr. Booth, in London, where he had been invited to occupy the pulpit of one of the largest churches during the nine weeks' absence of the minister. The first Sunday morning when he appeared in church, Dr. Booth was informed that he would be expected to follow the example of the absent pastor and give a ten-minute talk before the sermon to the children. He had never done this before, but then and there in the pulpit he composed his first address to children on "Toys." This volume includes sermons on dolls, tops, balls, balloons, guns, kites, electric cars, phonographs, sailing boats, sleds, skates, toboggans, bicycles, etc.

By REV. ANDREW HANSEN

WANDERING STARS: Fifty Ten-Minute Sermons to the Junior Congregation. . . . . . 12mo. Net, $1.00

Dr. Hansen has found the way to the child's heart. He has a knack of discovering the quaint title, the appealing subject, the intriguing phrase. This volume of short, little two-page sermons was written primarily for delivery before Sunday Schools or Infant Classes. It has a rare quality of appeal; titles like these: "The New Year Baby," "The Spots on the Leopard," "Thank You," "Turning the World Upside Down," "The Never-Slips," "Don't Block the Gangway," "The House That God Built," "Speaking With Our Feet," "Take-It-Back Day," "The Courtesy Gold Piece," "Wandering Stars," etc. This series should prove invaluable to preachers who have to deliver a short children's address before the sermon, or who address Sunday Schools frequently.

IS PREPAREDNESS FOR WAR UNCHRISTIAN? 12mo. Net, $1.00

Dr. Broughton argues, in this volume, that the War is directly traceable to the refusal of this generation to accept revelation, and that the collapse of what has been termed ethical salvation proves we must return to the true teachings of God as revealed in the unchallenged Scriptures. He remarks that we have seen the fruit of destructive criticism of the Bible in the anarchy and ruin of today. Taking up the subject of Preparedness, he declares his unalterable conviction that it is more Christian, more peaceable, more likely to lead to good ends than all the mistaken teachings of pacifists. Timely, informed, interesting from his close contact with events and personalities of the times, this book will bring to thousands the light, the guidance that they need.

By FATHER STANTON

LAST SERMONS IN S. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN
Edited with a Preface by E. F. Russell, M.A. 12mo. Net, $1.50

The fervent voice that drew hundreds of men, many of them from great distances, whenever Father Stanton was announced to preach is still. It had seemed to some, for whom the man's marvellous personality was dominant, that his warm, living words could never be put in cold print without failing to convey the sense of nearness to religion's very heart which his spoken word had given. But Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, a deep admirer of the man, though not a member of his sect, had had a shorthand writer take down many sermons. It was found that they had in them such loveliness of thought, such power of holiness, such consecration of insight, that they could not fail to give some understanding of the man's wonderful work, and to be of the most intimate value to all truly religious souls. Father Stanton's message reached men of all faiths, from Unitarian to Roman Catholic, and this book of his sermons should have a wide appeal.

WORDS OF THIS LIFE 12mo. Net, $1.25

These are indeed words of this life—intensely practical in their aim, most of the themes bearing on daily life and duty. Such a sermon as "Life's Emancipations," picturing the activities of the mind when it is released from a routine of toil, asking searchingly what we are doing with our life's emancipations—will arrest many and bring them to a sense of the futility and danger of their drifting. "A Talk About Our Fears" contains matter that will bring to many a release from fear. The frequency of allusions makes the book as rich a treasure for the busy preacher as for the layman seeking spiritual food.

THE BOOK OF PERSONAL WORK. 12mo. Net, $1.00

Sane, kindly human thoughts of the right, the simple way to gain souls to God's kingdom. "How many doors have been unlocked," the author exclaims, "by simplicity in the presentation of the truth!" The things that hinder the believer from stretching out his hand to those who need him, the shyness, the doubt as to ability, are all swept away by the great, sure, humble faith that those who trust will be permitted to be instruments of good. A true book of inspiration, and of practical help.

By MAITLAND ALEXANDER

THE GREAT STEP 12mo. Net, $0.50

No step is more important, no crisis greater in the life of anyone, than the joining of a church and the confession of Christ as the Savior. This precious little book will aid pastors and teachers in making the time of preparation full of the holy significance it rightly bears. Intending communicants will find it of value in their own hands.

By REV. PRINCIPAL PETER TAYLOR FORSYTH, M.A., D.D.

THEOLOGY IN CHURCH AND STATE 12mo. Net, $1.25

In this striking work Principal Forsyth insists on the necessity of dogma. The church, he says, cannot lie in a "viscous religiousity"—without a clear central concept of a definite faith it loses its very being. He conceives the place of the church in the community to be a commanding one, yet would have the present churches more separate from the state rather than less, but holding the final end in view of "a perfectly free and fertile connection between powers that cannot lie apart." A book of authority and weight. "Dr. Forsyth writes masterfully and yet loyally on every subject; and whatever subject Dr. Forsyth writes on we find pleasure and profit in it. . . . We might open the book anywhere and find something said memorably on some living issue." Expository Times. "Proves that even in these days a work of theology can be a work of literature. . . . As for his methods of argument, the took is abundant proof of their subtlety and force. Perhaps, however, his most striking gift is his power of phrase. . . . Whatever the eye falls upon arrests the mind."—Springfield Republican.

By JAMES ROBERTSON CAMERON, M.A.

THE RENASCENCE OF JESUS 12mo. Net, $1.50

A very wonderful effort to restore Jesus to the age which has so largely lost Him. Because the author is in his mind fully, deeply, honestly sympathetic with the zeitgeist, not grudgingly admitting for the sake of argument what he inwardly battles against he has made a great book. He speaks from a real at-oneness with his age, and forward-looking minds will feel that he speaks their language, knows their thoughts. It is not too much to predict that it will bring a lost strength and beauty back to many lives. It is a book great in conception and successful in execution. Discussion of Modern Literature, Modern Art, Modern Philosophy, brings him triumphantly to his consideration of The Christ That Was and Is To Be.

By CANON S. R. DRIVER, D.D.

STUDIES IN THE PSALMS. Edited by C. F. Burney, D. Litt.
12mo. Net, $1.50

These studies were collected for publication after the death of Dr. Driver, in accordance with his wish, and the feeling of those familiar with them that so much of inspiration and of scholarship should be cast in permanent form and made generally accessible. These are no mere literary exercises, neither are they the rather abstract raptures with which some have discussed the Psalms. Dr. Driver's method was carefully to examine the text of each psalm, next endeavoring to ascertain the historical situation in which it was called forth, the meaning it was intended to convey to those for whom it was written, and, finally, to illumine its deeper meaning and permanent spiritual values in a way wholly inimitable. There is an index for reference.

IMMORTALITY AND THE FUTURE 12mo. Net, $1.25

The best minds of to-day, says Dr. Mackintosh, "are painfully aware that the policy of keeping all statements about the Christian prospect as pale and undetermined as possible will not serve; that Christian people want the right guidance in this field." Such guidance he offers in an historical résumé of Eschatology, a masterly "reconstructive statement" of the Christian hope—the problems of death and immortality.

ATLAS OF THE HISTORICAL GEOGRAPHY OF THE HOLY LAND.
Folio, Sixty Maps in Color. Net, $7.50

Designed and edited by George Adam Smith, D.D., LL.D., Litt. D., Principal of The University of Aberdeen. Prepared under the direction of J. P. Bartholomew, LL.D., F.R.S.E., F.R.G.S.

The Atlas long announced and eagerly anticipated by many is now completed. Principal Smith's Historical Geography of the Holy Land has taken a secure place as the most authoritative book on the subject. The fact that that work is now in its seventeenth edition is the strongest proof of its really great value for a large and thorough knowledge of the Bible. His comprehensive and descriptive survey is based on personal acquaintance with the land, intimate knowledge of the explorations and discoveries of the last thirty years, and a recognition of the finest results of Biblical criticism. The long delayed companion Atlas, which has been in preparation since 1894, is now ready. It contains sixty maps, which were prepared under the direction of J. G. Bartholomew, LL.D., F.R.S.E., F.R.G.S., cartographer at the Edinburgh Geographical Institute. The united labors of two such skillful authorities have produced an Atlas absolutely indispensable to all students of the Bible. Among the noteworthy features of these maps are the recognition of the physical and political aspects of the early world; a consideration of the economic and historical geography of the land, exhibiting divisions, frontiers, and historical sites at various periods; illustrations of various conceptions of the Holy Land and of the ancient world to which it belonged; and a series of notes to the maps based on ancient and modern authorities. This Atlas is a prime necessity for the library of every theological seminary, college and university.

THEISM AND HUMANISM. The Gifford Lectures. 8vo. Net, $1.75

The reception of this book has proved one of the author's main contentions—the feeling that life has been losing in spiritual values insofar as the new rationalism and humanism are negative, has evidently been very general. Not only with professed religionists but with the thinking man and woman of every faith and unfaith, this book has made both a profound impression and a popular success. In it Mr. Balfour points out how the naturalistic interpretation of life fails to do justice to the permanent value of human effort, while, on the other hand, the theistic interpretation not only does this but gives it an adequate setting. The argument from design is not discredited but made more emphatic by aesthetics, ethics and scientific truth. The deeper reading of external nature as well as of the mind and soul of man leads the author to lay the stress not on adjustments and adaptations but on the character of the results obtained. The argument from design thus becomes the argument from value. The highest conception of God is shown to include not only the metaphysical emphasis on His all-inclusive unity, but also the religious demand for the ethical personality. These luminous discussions which are conducted from the point of view of common sense are constructive rather than critical in their purpose. They appeal to the philosopher as well as to the plain man, and have taken a sure place among the noteworthy contributions to theological thought.

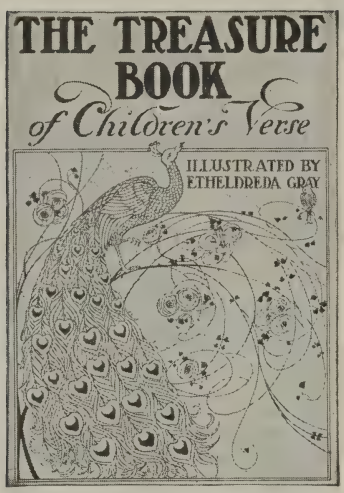
The Juvenile List

THE BIBLE STORY by William Canton. Illustrated with over 20 plates in color. Large octavo. Cloth. Uniform with "Robinson Crusoe." Net, $2.00

The complete story of the Old and New Testaments simply told for the understanding of children, but with an eloquence that cannot but prove fascinating. The author has exercised most unusual care to retain the sacred character of the Bible and has succeeded in a manner to excite admiration. Nevertheless, the book is written in so charming a style as to have a wonderful attraction for younger readers. It is a book that will encourage them to read with redoubled zeal and in the doing they will be provided with a solid basis for more extensive Bible-study. The illustrations are very faithful representations of the text, and their richness of color greatly adds to the charm of this particularly worthy book. It is by all means the most thoroughly satisfactory story of the Bible for children that has yet come to our notice.

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND. By Lewis Carroll. Illustrated in color by A. E. Jackson, with decorative cover. Large octavo. Cloth, Boxed. Net, $2.00

There are books for children and there are books for grown-ups, and between is a line very clearly defined. But once in a century there comes a book so written that it is read with unrestrained eagerness by either. Such a book is ALICE IN WONDERLAND. The child reads it for the sudden thrills and the mad happenings which trip in swift, unending succession, each upon the heels of the other. The child, grown up, renews his delightful acquaintance with the unforgettable and the graceful satire of its conversational adventures. ALICE IN WONDERLAND is a book which all will want in the best edition, and this is the most attractive and artistic edition yet issued.

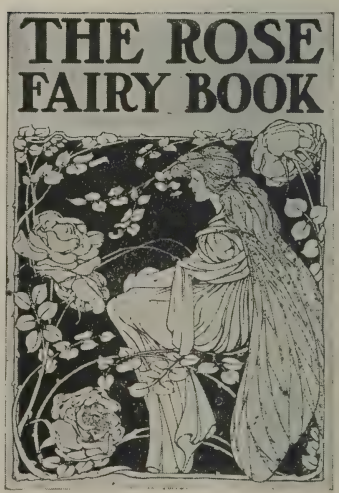


THE TREASURE BOOK OF CHILDREN'S VERSE. An Anthology, edited by Mabel and Lilian Quiller-Couch. Illustrated in color by M. Etheldreda Gray. Large octavo. Cloth. Handsomely bound. Boxed. Net, $2.00

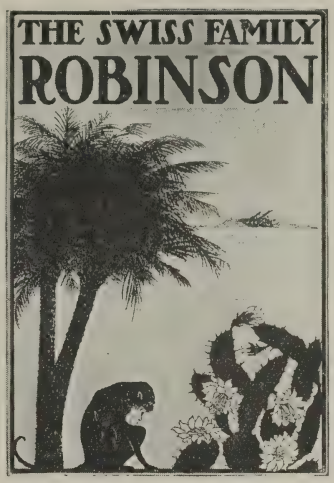
This unique collection of the best and sweetest verse for and about children ranks with Palgrave's GOLDEN TREASURY for originality in composition and literary judgment displayed in compiling. In Etheldreda Gray a great discovery has been made. Her pictures are touched with a wistful tenderness which is the soul of childhood. Each one is a little masterpiece of composition, and as elaborate in detail as an academy picture. As a gift to a mother of young children it is ideal—as the possession of a child it will be cherished for years as a text-book of happiness.

THE ROSE FAIRY BOOK. With 12 plates in color and 59 drawings by Lilian A. Govey. Large octavo. Illustrated and decorated cover. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00

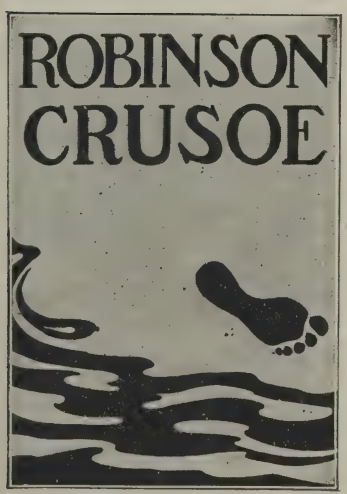
Here between the covers of one book are some of the best stories from the best books of fairy tales of every country and every age. "The Water of Life," "Muchie Lal," "The Nightingale," "Aladdin," "The Traveling Musician," "The Sleeping Beauty" and "Great Claus and Little Claus," are a few of them. In this book, therefore, a child can find the cream of them all, the illustrations, in spite of the dissimilar contents of the book, seem almost magically to adapt themselves to the stories, crystallizing in each its particular charm. Many line drawings and marginal sketches add to the book's attraction.



THE SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON. With 25 plates in color by T. H. Robinson. Large octavo. Decorative cover. Cloth. Boxed.
Net, $2.00



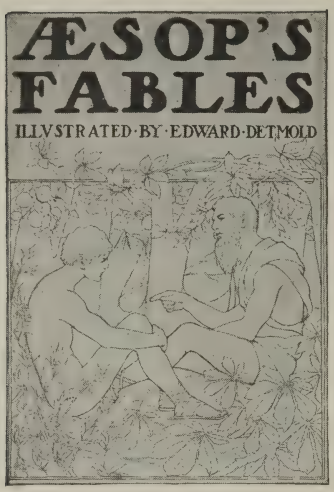
This story, which shares with "Grimm's Fairy Tales" and "Robinson Crusoe" the topmost pinnacle of children's affection, is here presented in the edition in which the others have been hailed with added enthusiasm. There is a richness and variety of adventure in Swiss Family Robinson which challenges the illustrator to his best efforts. Moreover, the remarkable color-sense combined with a vividly whimsical turn of line which Mr. Robinson embodies in these illustrations lends them a great fascination for children. This book is sure to be given the same delighted reception accorded the others.



ROBINSON CRUSOE. Illustrated with 24 plates in color by Noel Pocock, each separately mounted.
Large octavo. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00

No edition of ROBINSON CRUSOE hitherto published has been illustrated on the lavish scale of the present one. Mr. Pocock has caught the full spirit of his subject and his illustrations possess great originality of design and excellence of workmanship, bringing home with peculiar force and pathos the circumstances of Crusoe's solitary life. Printed on good paper in a bold type, and strongly bound in cloth, this book in its mechanical excellence is a fitting tribute to this ever-new treasure book for boy or girl, young or old.

The color printing of the illustrations is most excellent, the richness and brilliancy of the tropical effects so aptly caught by Mr. Pocock are faithfully reproduced, and the mounting of each reproduction on a gray mat individualizes the work as the ordinary method of printing fails to do.



THE FABLES OF ÆSOP. Illustrated by 23 plates in color by Edward J. Detmold.
Large octavo. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00

Mr. Detmold's artistic methods are not upon conventional lines—nor is he an imitator of any modern master in the field of color illustration. He is particularly happy when depicting animals in their relation to action and in their expression of activity and ideas. Mr. Detmold's interpretation of the spirit of ÆSOP will undoubtedly give unbounded satisfaction to the lovers of ÆSOP and this edition should help in restoring to public favor one of the world's greatest entertainers and greatest moral teachers. ÆSOP, illustrated as Mr. Detmold has illustrated it, will seem to have beauty added to the expression of his teachings and force added to the interpretation of them.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES. With 23 plates in color by Noel Pocock.

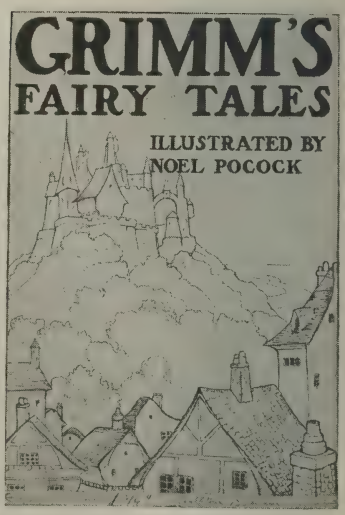
This most loved of all children's books has been illustrated many times, but heretofore no artist, who has undertaken the work, has possessed the wide range of versatility in dramatic ability, composition, or color sense, necessary to properly achieve pictorially the Fairy realm of these old story-tellers. The child of today is to be congratulated on having this completed edition of GRIMM, and the child of yesterday will turn the pages over in delight as the eye recalls the joys and delights of by-gone days when wandering hand in hand with the BROTHERS GRIMM. In style and size this new issue is uniform with the editions of Robinson Crusoe and Æsop's Fables. Of a large Octavo, the page size gives especial prominence to the illustrations and allows the use of a bold, handsome type.



VER BECK'S BEARS IN MOTHER GOOSE LAND. With nearly 75 illustrations in color and in black and white by Frank Ver Beck, and new rhymes by Hanna Rion and old ones by Mother Goose herself. Octavo. Decorated board cover. Net, $2.00

Frank Ver Beck's animal drawings have a great fascination for little children, both by reason of their extreme originality and the skill with which they are executed. These drawings are from his very best, and, reinforced by the clever new lines by Hanna Rion, and the best of the old ones from Mother Goose, make a book that will delight the children as has none other for a long, long time.

A HISTORY OF GERMANY. By H. E. Marshall. Quarto. Illustrated in color by A. C. Michael. Net, $2.50

A further volume in the great plan for retelling the history of the nations in a story-form for children. The pageant of the past is made to march with all its banners flying. The great characters, makers and shapers of nations' destinies are introduced as individuals rather than as the bearers of distinguished names. The writing is very human, seizing on the glamour and color of great events, and making them real in the present. The history of Germany is very little known to the average child; the book breaks new ground in its subject and in the method of its telling.

A HISTORY OF FRANCE. By H. E. Marshall, author of "Scotland's Story," etc. Illustrated in color by A. C. Michael. Quarto. Net, $2.50

Written with the accuracy of the exact historian, this book has the warmth and color of a brilliantly sustained romance. Free from the over-emphasis of prejudice, it tells the gallant story of a great people, and tells it in language so straightforward and sincere that to adults it will be more readable than a host of historical romances, and with children it will take its place on the book-shelf beside such favorite and well-thumbed volumes as TREASURE ISLAND and ROBINSON CRUSOE.

THE DETMOLD BABY ANIMAL BOOKS

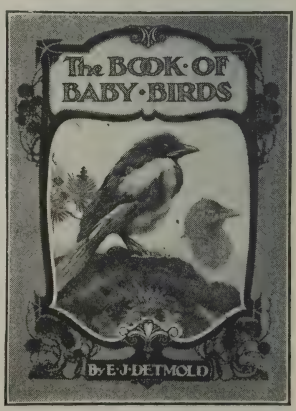
THE BOOK OF BABY DOGS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Charles Kaberry. With 20 plates in color. Bound in picture boards. Large quarto. Boxed. Net, $2.50

In this volume Mr. Detmold has turned to "man's greatest friend," the dog, to find the subjects for his charming illustrations. He has, perhaps, even more than in his previous volumes, achieved success in his interpretation of baby animal life. Here are found pictures of representative puppies of every type of dog. The perfect likeness and the charm of innocence in which the artist conveys his impression of the baby animal is so subtly defined that the reader literally feels the impression thus conveyed. It is one of the most original books about the dog, and must appeal to the dog-fancier and child alike.

THE BOOK OF BABY PETS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Florence E. Dugdale. 19 plates in color. Handsomely decorated binding. Large quarto. Boxed. Net, $2.50

Assuredly this volume will have an even greater appeal to children than the previous volumes which have become so popular. Equally beautiful illustrations with the same exceptional delicacy of coloring and line, accompany descriptions here of the little creatures which are dearest of all their possessions to children.

NEW POPULAR EDITIONS



THE BOOK OF BABY BIRDS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Florence E. Dugdale. Plates in color. Quarto. Net, $1.50

The illustrations of this book will educate the child as well as fascinate, for they are remarkably true to life; their appeal lies in their quaint and charming fidelity to the actual birds. And Miss Dugdale's description adds to the value and helps the child to understand the picture.

THE BOOK OF BABY BEASTS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Florence E. Dugdale. Plates in color. Quarto. Net, $1.50

The charm and sweetness of all young life has made a most successful appeal from the animal world to artists and writers of all generations. Never before, however, have there been brought into one volume so many pictures of very young animals so gracefully described as in these pictures by Detmold and the charming verse of Miss Dugdale.

THE FOREST RING. By William C. de Mille. A Fairy Fantasy. Illustrated in color with decorative jacket and picture end papers, by Harold Sichel.
Quarto. Net, $2.00

A fantasy delicate as a gossamer web, whose delicate delight would be spoiled by associating the word "lesson" with it, but which does, at the same time, teach a kindly lesson of the beauty of being good to dumb animals. It is the story of the fairies in the days when they have become shabby-genteel and forlorn because no one believes in them any more. Mr. de Mille, as author of STRONGHEART, THE WOMAN, etc., and co-author of CLASSMATES, showed a superb practical gift for successful drama. But in none of these has he had a chance to express the delight in fairy fantasy which is his as truly as strong situation and crisp dialogue. All that side of Mr. de Mille's work, hitherto unknown to this country, he has charmingly shown in THE FOREST RING. And it is doubtless due to his dramatic training that he has been able to make so vivid and quick-moving a story out of weft o' dream. The illustrations are highly unusual, especially for juveniles; they catch the very spirit of dream days and play days in the woods, and make of THE FOREST RING an American juvenile which rivals the lovely English work of Dulac and Heath Robinson.

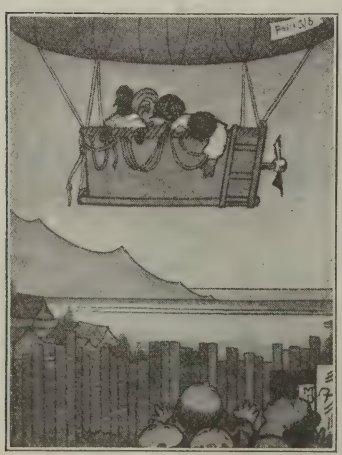
By GITHA AND MILLICENT SOWERBY

CINDERELLA: The story told by Githa Sowerby; the illustrations by Millicent Sowerby. Octavo. Decorated Board. Net, $2.50

Of all the old fairy tales dear to the hearts of children, the story of Cinderella has long held the topmost place in their affections, and when this exquisite legend is retold by the magic pen of Githa Sowerby its delicate charm and grace are increased a thousand fold. The illustrations and decorations are done with the elegance that has long been associated with the name of Millicent Sowerby, who, like her noted sister, has acquired an enviable place in the esteem of the little ones, and adhere to the romantic and fanciful atmosphere of the text with a fidelity rarely found in books for children.

THE SEA CHILDREN. Written and illustrated by Walter Russell.
Octavo. Cloth. Net, $2.00

An undersea fairy tale. This is the kind of children's story that gets handed down as a treasured possession from big brother or sister to small, or carefully cherished by its owner till a new generation is ready for it. The kind that gives an imaginative child entrance to a land of wonder and happiness so thrilling, so dear, that it is never forgotten. The kind grown-ups will surreptitiously read when they are tired (some of them—cowards!—with the Something-or-other Review to lay over it if anyone comes), and which they never mind having to read aloud. It is quite unlike Kingsley's great classic, but it has its own right to live. The child's love of the supernatural is satisfied; the boy-child's demand for breathless adventure, danger, and thrills; the girl-child's demand for beauty and happiness. The pictures of undersea life—both pictorial and verbal—are of real artistic and scientific value, the author-artist having had the assistance of many scientists in his preparation of the very decorative drawings and instructive, though exciting text.



THE COCKYOLLY BIRD. Written and illustrated in color by Mabel Dearmer. Octavo. Cloth. Net, $1.50

The Cockyolly Bird was really a toy when Kit first got him, but he suddenly developed the ability to sing. Now, when anyone hears a Cockyolly Bird sing, he has but to say Cockyolly backards and something is bound to happen. Kit was, like many other little boys, very, very curious about such things. So, when he heard the Cockyolly Bird sing one time, he summoned up all his courage and said Cockyolly backwards. That was at the very beginning of the story, but from that time on things happened with an amazing swiftness. The record of Kit's adventures in many strange lands and places form a story for little children sure to arouse their wildest enthusiasm, and make them wish that, like Kit, they had owned a Cockyolly Bird.

THIS YEAR'S BOOK FOR BOYS. Excellently illustrated by color plates from the originals of prominent artists. Bound in decorated cloth. Octavo. Net, $1.50

There are stories of great daring, bravery, and self-sacrifice in every walk of life, which, aside from their delightfully entertaining qualities have still another virtue, that of setting a high standard of conduct for ordinary as well as great occasions.

THIS YEAR'S BOOK FOR CHILDREN. End papers in color. Cloth back. Embossed cover. Large Quarto. Net, $1.50

It is within the power of but few juvenile writers to produce stories for youngsters combining the qualities of genuine interest, full of action and merriment, with the faculty of unobtrusively teaching these little ones many good and wholly necessary things, yet those who have contributed to this volume are among that few. As in the previous edition, THIS YEAR'S BOOK FOR CHILDREN is printed artistically from extra large type, and embodies the very best collection of stories in verse and in prose for the little ones who are just beginning to read.

They will be found to be just the thing for the child who has not yet learned to read alone, as well as for the one who is just beginning to pick out the words one by one. The illustrations are so faithfully representative of the text, and so artistically executed that they help a great deal toward rendering the stories easily understood.

The illustrations, too, have caught the spirit of the occasion—Chloë Preston is at her best—and the volume will serve to further endear her to her youthful readers.

BARBARA PEEK-A-BOO'S HOLIDAY. Drawn by Chloë Preston. Octavo. Decorated board covers. $1.00

It has been commonly supposed that every day was a holiday with the Peek-a-Boos, but that is not quite the case, as is shown as the story of Barbara's holiday unfolds itself. For on this holiday she crams just twice as many adventures into a day as ordinarily, but, at all events, the story of Barbara's holiday will provoke the little folks to an even greater degree of mirth than have Chloë Preston's other Peek-a-Boo stories, so dear to the hearts of children.

JOLLY JAUNTS WITH JIM: THROUGH THE FIREPLACE. Verses by Charles Hanson Towne. Illustrated with 20 color plates and decorated throughout by H. Devitt Welsh. Small quarto. Net, $1.25

On a cold and wintry afternoon Jimmy crept into Father's study with his dog Tag. Sinking into the depths of the comfortable Morris chair, drawn up before a bright, crackling log fire, he lapsed into a brown study. Before long the funniest little man in the world came from out the flames and invited Jimmy and Tag to accompany him on a trip through Flame Land, which they were very glad to do. They found this fairy realm inhabited by the most wonderful people imaginable, and they had a perfectly glorious time, even if Tag did forget his manners when he was dining with the King and Queen. Such is the sum and substance of one of the most thoroughly delightful stories for little folks in many a long day, and very charmingly told in pleasing verses.

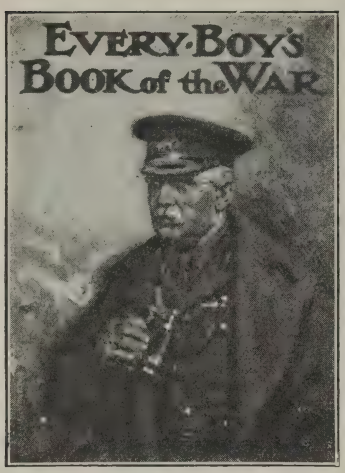
She accurately describes them in their native environment as well as in captivity, and includes a brief account of their origin. It is all written in simple understandable English so that it presents no difficulties for younger readers, but adults will find a great deal of interest in it too. The text is most excellently illustrated by photogravures taken from the original of a remarkable series of photographs by Henry Irving.



EVERY BOY'S BOOK OF THE WAR. Edited by Herbert Strang. Profusely illustrated with color plates, diagrams, maps, etc. Quarto. Net, $1.25

It depicts the human side of warfare: we experience the soldier's exultation in action; we see him on the retreat and the advance; we share his dismay at being kept in the trenches; we feel the sailor's fright in running from the enemy's death-dealing submarine. It is truly all life-like. There are non-technical articles on the implements of warfare: dreadnoughts, submarines, destroyers, torpedoes, field artillery. Of utmost fascination is the delineation of the peoples engaged in the conflict, telling of their ideals, institutions, habit of mind, mode of living.
